Cyprus Crisis

Peace Effort Flops

AP - Reuters

NICOSIA—U.S. Undersecretary of State George Ball's efforts to sell President Makarios of Cyprus a British-U.S. peace plan collapsed Friday. Diplomats said Makarios will present the Cyprus crisis to the United Nations Security Council.

The bearded chief of state who has said that "when I have certain ideas I will not compromise"—rejected the proposal for landing of an international peace-keeping army outside UN control.

Ball said the search will continue for a solution to bring peace and order out of the communal fighting between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots, in which three Turkish-Cypriots were reported shot dead Friday.

UNEASY ALLIES

Then Ball flew off in a U.S. Air Force jet plane to brief government officials of Turkey and Greece, uneasy allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, on the outcome of three days of discussions which he and a special British envoy, Cyril Pickard, conducted in Nicosia.

Both U.S. and British diplomats strongly urged Turkey against independent intervention.

ISSUE WARNING

Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu was reported to have warned the U.S., British and Greek governments that urgent steps must be taken to restore security.

Landing in Ankara for talks with Inonu and Foreign Minister Feridun Cemal Irfan, Ball told reporters he was gripped by the situation on Cyprus, "which we found very critical."

BRING RETURN

"We are determined to find a solution," he said. "This is needed for the sake of Cyprus as well as for world peace. The United States, in collaboration with our ally Britain, will search for ways which would bring the return of order and security."

Ball will go next to Athens, then to London. A Cypriot government spokesman announced Foreign Minister Spyros Kyprianou will fly to New York in preparation for placing the issue before the Security Council next week. This is in line with a call by Premier Khrushchev one week ago for a settlement by the Security Council and Cyprus itself.

MLAs' Tribute to Chicago

Turner
... safety catch

Two-Bit Charge Dropped

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative
Reporter

The hearts and flowers tradition of Feb. 14 exploded into a legislative Valentine's Day massacre yesterday.

One minute the house heard a moving tribute to former women MLAs and the next minute the epithets cracked and ricocheted like the slugs which mowed down a clutch of Chicago gangsters just 35 years before.

The day started on a happy note when Lois Hagen (NDP—Grand Forks-Greenwood) thanked Premier Bennett for a Valentine's bouquet.

TURNER FIRST

Within minutes the verbal bullets were flying. Arthur Turner (NDP—Vancouver East) released the safety catch when he broached the subject of conflicting statements over the proposed Bank of British Columbia.

What followed was the noisiest afternoon of the session. Speaker William Murray's crashing gavel could hardly be heard at times as he tried to restore order.

On the heels of Mr. Turner's unfinished opening remarks came these salvos:

● Premier Bennett called Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane a "two-bit lawyer."

● North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson said either Premier Bennett or Canada's bankers had lied.

● Mr. Bennett said the conflicting statements about the bank were the result of a misunderstanding.

● Mr. Turner challenged the premier to make a statement Monday to reconcile the apparent conflict.

Cause of the fracas was a statement by Premier Bennett last Friday that Canada's chartered banks had been asked to establish their head offices in B.C. before the provincial government had deemed it necessary to promote its own bank. A number of bankers denied they were approached.

REPORTS QUOTED

Mr. Turner opened his speech by referring to newspaper clippings and quoting from reports of what the bankers had said.

One had termed the premier's claim "rubbish" and others had branded it untrue. Suddenly a white-faced Premier Bennett leaped to his feet, shouting: "Mr. Speaker, I think this has gone far enough."

HONOR INVOLVED

When opposition members told him to sit down he said he was talking on a point of personal privilege. His honor had been brought up before on this matter.

He said he had asked the heads of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, The Royal Bank of Canada, The Toronto-Dominion Bank, the Bank of Montreal and the Bank of Nova Scotia.

WASNT THOSE

"Either the bankers are not telling the truth or else the premier is not telling the truth," said Mr. Turner. "They are not lying either, they are not telling the truth."

Mr. Turner said the premier should have clarified the conflict earlier.

"Table the letters (to the banks)," called out Opposition Leader Strachan. "I have clarified it now," said the premier.

Turks on Move

ISTANBUL (AP)—Press reports today said that Turkish warships carrying troops and heavy equipment sailed from the southern port of Iskenderun Friday night.

In a dispatch by its special correspondent in Iskenderun, the influential Istanbul Daily Milliyet said: "The embarkation of troops from the 29th Division was completed at 2 p.m. EST Friday."

Defector Wants U.S. Asylum

Nosenko

WASHINGTON (AP)—Yuri I. Nosenko, Soviet secret police defector, told Russian and Swiss representatives in Washington Friday that he wants political asylum in the United States, the U.S. state department announced.

Press officer Richard I. Phillips said Nosenko's request will be granted. His disappearance from the Soviet disarmament delegation in Geneva Feb. 4 created a cold war sensation.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko accused the U.S. of "improper behavior" in the Nosenko case. He delivered a stiff oral protest to U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Koh.

Outcry Expected

End to Banks' Rule Goal of Opposition

By ROBERT RICH

OTTAWA (CP)—An opposition outcry for the head of Hal Banks of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada is expected to erupt at the session of Parliament starting Tuesday. With the shipping season about seven weeks away, opposition spokesmen say they will press the government for an early report from the three-man board of trustees over maritime unions on what they have done and plan to do in restoring democracy to the SIU. Labor Minister MacEachen is expected to receive the trustees' report this month, and to table it in the Commons promptly.

FIRST STEP

There are indications, however, that the report may do little to mollify MPs who felt the ouster of Banks would be the first step taken by trustees in assuming management and control of the SIU and the four other marine unions.

Explosion Derails Train

NEW SMYRNA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—An explosion under the lead locomotive of a strike-bound Florida East Coast Railway freight train derailed 14 moving cars Friday night.

W. L. Thornton, chief operating officer of the railroad struck 13 months ago, said it was "another sabotage... an attempted murder."

Thornton said there is now more than 200 such sabotage attempts... something of a national disgrace which goes back to the old gun squad racket.

Union spokesmen had no immediate comment.

BANK 'BULLETS' FLY

Skilling

Privy Council Skillings' Spot

North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson, stung by Waldo Skillings' sally Thursday night accusing him of being intoxicated during debate on the B.C. Electric takeover in 1961, got his revenge yesterday.

He had been studying Mr. Skillings' background in an attempt to learn why he would make such a remark, Mr. Gibson said.

The Oxford dictionary supplied the word "skilling," meaning "a shed or outhouse," Mr. Gibson said.

The House roared. "So from now on," the burly millionaire logger continued, "I am going to refer to him as the privy councillor."

over B.C.'s handling of social assistance by sending an open letter of resignation to the premier, said he expects to head back to Fort St. John Monday.

His resignation as a social worker was accepted with stunning alacrity Thursday.

He had said the way welfare is administered he found it impossible to cope with conditions of prostitution, drunkenness and juvenile delinquency in his huge bailiwick north of Fort St. John.

He flew here at his own expense, hoping to talk to the premier Thursday, but he wasn't able to get an appointment.

Yesterday, he phoned the premier's office at 10 a.m. and was told he would be called back.

But no call came, so late in the afternoon he called again.

"A secretary in the premier's office told me she wasn't able to get in touch with the premier today," Mr. du Temple said.

Mr. du Temple said his stand was winning strong demand in the north for better social services.

A telegram he received from prominent people in Fort Nelson said the community is demanding a full-time social worker.

In his letter Mr. du Temple had named Fort Nelson as one of the trouble spots in his district.

Because his territory included 1,100 miles of road and a widely scattered population he could never be in the place he was needed most. He said a Fort Nelson social worker was essential.

Mr. du Temple's case was raised in the legislature by North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson, who said that, right or wrong, the case should be fully aired before the legislative welfare committee.

He noted Welfare Minister Black was out of the House and said he should be on a plane to Fort St. John to investigate Mr. du Temple's charges.

The ex-social worker had "looked like a man of character," said Mr. Gibson, and it was a disgrace his story wouldn't be heard by the committee.

He charged Mr. Black with "running an awfully, awfully poor department."

'How Can You Expect A Proper Job Done?'

FORT NELSON (CP)—Community leaders have wired the provincial government asking for a fulltime welfare officer.

The demand, above 20 signatures, came after Wallace du Temple, government social worker at Fort St. John, was fired for saying his job was impossible. His area included Fort Nelson.

Several of the men who signed the telegram said they saw du Temple only rarely.

Rev. Robert Robiller, a Roman Catholic priest known as "Bob of the North," said: "How can you expect a man who is stationed 250 miles away to come into this area and do a proper job when he has to serve over 6,000 people in five communities spread over 1,000 miles of road?"

F. J. Topp, a stipendiary magistrate, said: "I know a woman pensioner who's going on 75, is broke but can't get hospitalization or medical care from the welfare department."

"Yet in the same town here we have a young woman with four kids, whose husband is living common law with another woman and kid in Vancouver, and she gets hospitalization for herself and her kids."

"She also gets about $160 a month in welfare but the old woman gets nothing. In all she gets about $200 a month with family allowance but gets almost everything free."

"I don't care what the government does to me because of my statements. The trouble in B.C. is that if you work for the government and know things are wrong but speak out you get fired just like du Temple."

Salvation Army Swings

LONDON (AP)—The Salvation Army invaded the pop music world Friday by releasing a catchy religious record featuring army lads and ladies singing, playing guitars and drumming something like the Beatles.

The record, It's An Open Secret, with We're Going to Set The Whole World a Singing on the other side, has the melody carried by male voices, with responses from the girls, plus a driving twist beat and busy guitars.

It was made by The Joy Strings, led by attractive Capt. Joy Webb, a bouncy brunette who composed the two songs. All the proceeds will go to the Salvation Army.

"They are as near as we dare to go a commercial sound," she said. "I kept two points in mind: The words had to be crystal clear so that the religious message could be understood, and the lyrics had to retain a certain dignity."

"It would not have done, for instance, to pepper the lyrics with yeah-yeahs and woo-woos."

The Joy Strings are members of the Salvation Army training college at Denmark Hill in London, with the exception of drummer Wycliffe Noble, an architect.

Who Are They?

Who are these handsome, crewcut lads? Guesses could be they are Boy Scouts off to jamboree, Jaycees planning good works or even—perversely—the morning lineup at juvenile court. Real answer is on Page 16.

Gunfire Riddles Two Families

FALLS CHURCH, Va. (AP)—A teacher's wife shot her four children Friday—three of them fatally—and then committed suicide, police reported.

The fourth child, a two-year-old boy, was in extremely critical condition in hospital with a head wound. The killer was identified as Judith Cox, wife of Thomas Cox, principal of an elementary school.

In Athens, Ohio, four members of the farm family of William Wildman, 55, died when a shotgun-wielding man ran amok. Two others, one a small boy, were wounded seriously. Farmhand Rudy Zarnora, 20, was sought by police.

The state department finally cleared up the mystery of Nosenko's whereabouts by saying he now is in the United States and the Soviets had sent a note asking to interview him.

WHEREABOUTS SECRET

The state department spokesman then disclosed that Nosenko is "in the United States," and will be interviewed by Soviet representatives here—but he steadfastly refused to say where Nosenko is being kept.

OTTAWA (CP) — A Prairie economy already supercharged by record wheat sales soon will get an added infusion of nearly $200,000,000.

This is the all-time record amount declared by the Canadian wheat board on Friday as the farmers' final returns on wheat they delivered to the board during the 1962-63 crop year that ended last July 31.

Cheques will start to go out on Feb. 17, the board said.

The payments total $199,730,373, including $30,744,066 for durum wheat.

UP TO $1.50

When they made their wheat deliveries during the 1962-63 year, the farmers got initial payments from the board that ranged up to $1.50 a bushel for the top grade of spring wheat, No. 1 northern.

Closing its books on a year of domestic and export sales, the board declared final payments that average 40.181 cents a bushel for the various grades of spring wheat and 64.78 cents for durum.

Hermit Defies Warning

Hermit Lawrence McNamara, 61, of Vancouver, returned Friday to rockpile home on empty city lot despite Magistrate Ralph Reid's warning to stay away because "there might be other charges." 'Bullets' Fly in House

"Name the dates and the people," challenged Mr. Macfarlane.

"I wish my friend would realize he is not in a court of law," snapped the premier. "He's one of these little two-bit lawyers."

Cries of "shame" and "withdraw" filled the House. Some government members looked uncomfortable.

"I will withdraw it and say he would never serve a client for that low price."

Mr. Macfarlane was on his feet again demanding a withdrawal.

"He withdrew," said the Speaker.

SECOND REMARK

"How about the second remark?" asked the Oak Bay M.L.A. "I demand that you withdraw."

The premier withdrew and relative quiet reigned for a few minutes as Mr. Turner finished his speech.

Then Mr. Gibson got up to speak but the premier had left the House, as he usually does when the North Vancouver member rises.

NOT SATISFIED

He started the bank ruckus again when he said he wasn't satisfied with the premier's answers.

"The bankers of Canada have built up a pretty good reputation and they absolutely deny the premier asked them or contacted them about a bank."

"I hope they are wrong. I hope they are wrong," he said.

FOUR YEARS

"If they weren't, 'God help this country for the next four years.'"

"To me it is unthinkable that premier could be thought wrong on that issue."

The bankers, he said, "deny completely the premier ever approached them. That hurt me very much."

He wouldn't stop talking about the bank, he said, until the premier gave him the names of the bankers he talked to.

"I only want honorable people running a bank and if there is any question about starting out with deceit, I am not going to have that in this House."

He said he thought the premier must be down in his office "thinking about it now."

LEGAL MANNER

"Perhaps he's with some of his legal department, finding how he can maybe explain to us in a legal manner which will not put him in the position he finds himself in now," said Mr. Gibson.

He said businessmen should be ashamed for having endorsed the proposed bank before any details were known.

Smoking Quiz To Be Given Teen-Agers

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Washington State is going to the teen-agers to find out why they smoke and how they might be persuaded to stop.

A special state anti-smoking committee has decided to seek the teen-ager views by naming a seven-member advisory group of young persons.

Dr. George Spandlow, committee chairman, said Friday members will be sought from the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, 4-H future farmers, future teachers, future nurses and boys' and girls' state organizations.

MEET MARCH 3

The first meeting of the youth group has been proposed for March 3.

"We want to learn methods of appealing to young people," he said. "The group also will be used as a sounding board for educational materials on smoking."

Dr. Spandlow said the anti-smoking committee also has decided to look into possible legal changes that would make more realistic and enforceable the existing state law banning sale of cigarettes to juveniles.

Woman Gets 18 Months

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lillian Boswell, 43, was given a 18-month jail term Friday for possession of narcotics.

Mrs. Boswell was found guilty last week after an Assize Court jury was told that two of three bruise-like marks on her face came off like eye-brow pencil when her face was washed.

The woman had charged that police used brutality in questioning her.

Firms Boost Sugar Price

MONTREAL (CP) — Three major Montreal sugar refineries Wednesday announced the second price increase in as many days, raising the wholesale price of sugar 15 cents to $15.10 a 100-pound bag.

This year the three refineries—Canada and Dominion, Atlantic, and St. Lawrence have announced 14 price changes—eight decreases and six increases.

what's happening to the telephone book?

Like every other part of your body, your eyes change with your years. Your first realization of this could come when you suddenly find it hard to pick out a name in a telephone book. But nothing "sudden" has happened. The loss of the eye's ability to focus is gradual throughout most of our life. After age 40 it is particularly important to have your vision checked regularly.

B.C. ASSOCIATION OF OPTOMETRISTS

End to Banks' Rule Sought

The trustees took over Oct. 24 and promptly said they had no plans to dump any union officials—unless such a step became necessary—despite the findings of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris that the SIU was a corrupt, lawless union led by a man of violence.

NORRIS REPORT

It was the report of Justice Norris after a year-long public investigation that led to the imposition of the trusteeship. He said there could be no labor peace on the Great Lakes as long as Banks and his senior officers occupy positions of influence in any maritime union.

Government sources said this warning was kept in mind in drafting the legislation so that the trustees would have the power to "remove or suspend" any officer or employee of any of the five unions.

Although Banks is still president of the SIU, the trustees insist they are in full control now.

NOT OVERNIGHT

Their position is that a lasting solution to the Great Lakes problem cannot be produced overnight—and should not be expected.

During the last session of Parliament, many MPs chose not to press the trustees for hurried action in what is generally regarded as one of the most difficult jobs ever assigned by Parliament.

But now—almost four months later—there are signs of growing concern about the way the trustees appear to be handling their assignment.

The CLC has urged them to get rid of Banks as the first step toward reforming the Seafarers' union. The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, whose maritime locals are under the trustees' control, has publicly criticized them and alleged that they are delaying the cleanup of the SIU.

One Thing About Hard Water It's Not Effective in Washing

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Our well water has shown a lot of iron and calcium. Is this safe for drinking and cooking? Will it destroy the vitamins in food? Do certain minerals settle in the body and harden, or will they be digested? Could constant use of this water be harmful to us now or later? — MRS. C. J.

No, the water won't harm you. The minerals will not "settle in the body and harden." They will just wash away the same way they entered the body—in the water—through the kidneys and by sweating. The only bad thing about hard water is that it isn't as effective in washing. You can't work up as good a lather or suds.

Dear Doctor: We recently had a water softener installed. Now our friends and neighbors have informed us that this device takes away certain minerals and vitamins which are necessary to the body. What is your opinion? — H. W. B.

My opinion is that your "helpful" friends and neighbors ought to mind their own business, and learn the facts before they try to worry you with such nonsense. Chances are they are jealous.

There are no vitamins in water, whether hard or soft. There are minerals in hard water. That's what makes the water "hard." But they are not in a form which can be used by the body.

Softening, by various processes, involves substituting sodium for the calcium and magnesium in the hard water.

The one thing to watch out for, with softened water, is this: People on a low-salt (low sodium) diet should avoid softened water because of the sodium it contains. It is not, however, harmful to the rest of us.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain the term, idiopathic grand mal epilepsy, in words understandable to a layman. — T. A.

Epilepsy is a "convulsant disorder." That is, the part of the brain which control muscular activity are affected. Involuntarily you find the muscles going into an abrupt tightening or paralysis or "convulsion."

There are two principal forms of this, the "grand mal," or severe convulsion which may last for several minutes. The patient will lose consciousness, may thrash about, bite his tongue.

The other common form is the "petit mal," which may occur very frequently in some cases, sometimes many times a day. But the attacks are mild and very brief.

SOME SORT

If the cause of the epilepsy is known, an injury of some sort, it is called traumatic. If no such injury can be ascertained, the case is called idiopathic.

Hence idiopathic grand mal epilepsy means a convulsant disorder, cause not known, with convulsion of a severe form.

The majority of such cases can be treated with harmless drugs which prevent most and sometimes virtually all of the attacks.

Reds Plan Fertilizer Drive

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev asserted Friday that with the aid of capitalist methods and machines, the Soviet Union will cover its farm lands with chemical fertilizer in seven years, doing what capitalist countries took decades to do. Addressing the plenary meeting of the Communist party's central committee in summing up the Soviet food crisis, Khrushchev said "certain politicians in capitalist countries contend that the planned program of development of chemistry is beyond the strength of Soviet economy." "But the Soviet Union is a mighty socialist country," he declared. "The program of creating a large-scale chemical industry is within the possibilities of our people... There is no question that it will be fulfilled."

To solve the task of intensifying agricultural production, "we must utilize all that is interesting and useful in the sister socialist (communist) countries and study more deeply the achievements of science and practical farming in the capitalist countries."

"It would be stupid to ignore the achievements of foreign science only because they were made in a capitalist country."

Criticizing efforts to raise corn regardless of soil and climatic conditions, he left it up to local farmers to decide what to plant.

Clearly backing down from his former insistence on mass sowing of corn, Khrushchev said that although corn and sugar beets are valuable fodder crops, "distortions must not be tolerated... the most valuable crops for local conditions should be used."

In other observations, the Soviet premier told the central committee: "Lagging collective farms are being developed by specialists and as incentives people who work on collective or state farms must be admitted to agricultural institutes and insured pensions."

ANITA and DOROTHY DONALD

Divorce Granted

Busy Donald Relieved Of One of Three 'Wives'

LONDON (AP) — A man who lived with three women simultaneously in one bungalow was relieved of one of them—his wife—by the divorce court yesterday.

The man was Donald M. Goodman, 37, and his many splendored love life was described by Judge Stanley Rees as "bizarre in the extreme."

The divorce decree was obtained by Swiss-born Mrs. Anita Goodman, 28, on cruelty and misconduct grounds. She testified that all one and the same time Goodman, a company director, maintained in the bungalow: Himself, his legal wife (he had been divorced by two previous ones).

Miss Dorothy Busey, 24, by whom he had already had an illegitimate child.

Mrs. Gwyneth Spooner, 31, his secretary, who served him after office hours in other ways.

"If anything could be more remarkable than what then happened I have never heard of it," was the judge's incredulous comment.

He said Goodman urged his wife and Miss Busey to coax

Gwyneth back to the bungalow because he was unhappy without her. The two women agreed to try. They succeeded, and life went on as before, only more so.

At one point the bungalow contained Goodman, the three women, Miss Busey's son by Goodman and one of his sons by one of his previous marriages. Mrs. Goodman and Mrs. Spooner were pregnant at the time.

After three years of this, Mrs. Goodman decided her marriage was not a howling success. She fled to divorce, and got it.

To East Berlin

Easter Visits Quashed

BERLIN (UPI) — The West Berlin city government, acting on orders of the Western allies and West Germany, announced Friday it has rejected a Communist East German offer to issue Easter passes for travel through the Berlin Wall.

The joint announcement by the Bonn government and the city said the East German offer was unacceptable and charged the Communists were trying to make political capital out of the West's desire to reunite families separated by the Berlin Wall.

The Communist proposal, patterned after the controversial Christmas pass agreement, actually was rejected Thursday by the West at a meeting in East Berlin of the same West Berlin and East German negotiators who had signed the earlier pass accord.

The Communists again proposed to send East German officials into West Berlin to issue passes to West Berliners enabling them to visit their relatives in East Berlin between March 21 and March 30.

Informal sources said that the West Berlin negotiator, Horst Kohler, an aide of Mayor Willy Brandt had indicated in the talks, without consulting the Western allies and West German government, that the new pass offer might be acceptable.

The Bonn government and U.S. British and French officials consider the plan would endanger West Berlin's legal position.

Bus Ride Last For Pupils

WINNIPEG (CP) — A group of parochial school children rode a public school bus to school again Friday, but a bus lines official indicated the arrangement would be short-lived.

The students, involved in a simmering controversy over public aid to parochial schools, used passes issued to them earlier in the week, then revoked.

A. J. Thiessen, president of Thiessen and Grey Goose Bus Lines, which transports neighboring St. Vital children to Lavalie public schools, said the 21 children involved will not be allowed aboard his buses Monday.

Bandits Kill Businessman

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Police in the Atlantic provinces and Quebec are on the alert for the robber-slayers of a prominent Saint John businessman.

Shot through the stomach and a hip by a .33-calibre bullet, Hugh S. Gregory, 65, died in hospital early Friday. He was president of a stevedoring firm.

Unofficial estimates of the cash taken in the payroll robbery ranged up to $15,000. The bandits missed a box containing another $15,000.

Mission to Ottawa

ALTHOUGH its representations will be somewhat prejudiced by the shipyard strike, which does not improve the case to be made, Mayor Wilson will head a delegation to Ottawa to seek a fair local share of government defence contracts. The industry is presently at a standstill on the west coast but its future depends materially on the success of this mission.

It is pleasing to know also that the delegates will meet on Monday with Prime Minister Pearson himself, who cannot fail to be aware of the claims of this area for naval and other government work of this nature which awaits allocation.

The mayor will be accompanied by a strong group of municipal, labor and business leaders to back up the brief to be presented, and in Ottawa these will be buttressed by the support of cabinet ministers and other MPs from the west coast. It would seem that the concerted weight of such representation cannot fail to make a considerable impact.

In particular assurance will be sought that the refit contracts envisaged for three Esquimalt-based warships will be awarded to the yards of the west coast, with in consequence Victoria and Vancouver plants taking this work in hand. This is so logical it scarcely bears argument, but there have been hints that one or more of these vessels may be sailed all the way to the east coast for the work to be done there, a farcical idea that can only have its inception in terms of political bias.

The all-round composition of the mayor's delegation should convince the prime minister of the fallacy of depriving west coast yards of these contracts, as well as emphasizing the continuing need to keep so important an industry in being by as much government work as possible.

There is no feeling that other Canadian yards should not also come into the picture, but simply that this area should get its due share of defence and other contracts. We wish the delegation every success and commend its efforts.

Military Cuts

IN PRINCIPLE the universal cut in military expenditures suggested by the Soviet delegate at the Geneva disarmament conference, a reduction of 10 to 15 per cent by all countries equally, would be a welcome and sensible step.

So of course would many others that have been proposed by one side at the talks and found fault with by the other. Clearly the world in so far as it is represented by the 17 nations conferring at Geneva is not ready for a headlong dash to complete disarmament, but the pace in this direction is slow enough to discourage the least optimistic of peace-seekers. Seemingly both the U.S.S.R. and the Western alliance as chiefly spoken for by the United States are afraid of loss of face if they accept each other's ideas too readily. This is the appearance at any rate that is presented as the talks go on and on with few signs of agreement or compromise.

The American delegation, however, can hardly be blamed for being cautious about the new suggestion put forward by Mr. Tsarapkin, appealing as it may be in principle. Not even if in theory it would free money the world over for peaceful advancement on a large scale: 10 or 15 per cent of the $120,000,000,000 the Russian delegate says is being spent annually for military purposes; not even if carried through as a continuing periodic reduction, which would be the logical sequel, it would lead the way to almost complete disarmament. For there are two flaws in the proposal that demand careful scrutiny and thought.

The first is that outside of the Kremlin, no one can say with assurance what part of the Soviet budget is devoted to defence spending; how much martial research and development and construction might be concealed under other headings such as "social and cultural measures" and "financing the national economy." And without this knowledge, a professed cut-back would mean almost nothing. Without safeguards that have not even been suggested, the degree of effective disarmament could be greatly at variance.

The second is that two major powers—France and particularly China—not being represented at Geneva, and the latter not even in the United Nations and at odds with Russia, would seem to be a barrier to the Soviet plan. So much so, indeed, that Mr. Tsarapkin must be suspected of advancing it with his eyes tightly closed to this fact in hopeful anticipation of being able to accuse the West, on the world stage, of hampering progress by refusing to take his suggestion at a gulp.

Curing the Complex

MR. GAGLIARDI is of opinion that the Roundabout is a "complicated thing in a complicated area" and so it is. Where six streets converge at any one point the traffic congestion is bound to be more than can be easily handled. The city has done its best recently to try and improve the tangle but there can be agreement with the highways minister that too many roadways come into this area and some of them should be moved away.

Mr. Gagliardi hasn't done much to help the city with its Roundabout problem, however. His department funnels the Trans-Canada and the Patricia Bay highways right into this bottleneck and on through to the Beacon Hill waterfront, the official end of the Trans-Canada system, but stops paying for these roadways at the city boundary. The city is thus saddled with the costs and movement of traffic over whose direction it has had no control.

The Patricia Bay route into town for instance could be changed if Mr. Gagliardi saw fit to move it consistently with his views on Roundabout congestion. Instead there seems no departmental intention to slacken the traffic flow by this logical development. It is here also that another difficulty for the city shows up. Civic efforts to cure the trouble are hampered by being unaware of future highways department plans, but having the problem dumped in its lap when roadways are led into instead of away from the Roundabout.

Mr. Gagliardi doesn't seem to be in the picture either when he says "there is every possibility the Patricia Bay Highway is being considered for four lanes instead of moving it some place else." One might have thought the highways minister would know precisely what his department had in mind.

As to this particular highway it is now a speedway serving in the main the government ferry system, to the detriment of users of other purpose. The most immediate relief to the Roundabout complex would come about if this ferry road was re-routed into town at another point, with the highways department bearing the cost within as well as without the city boundary.

Troubles with Project Mohole

By MARQUE CHILDS

IF THE U.S. space agency is having trouble reaching the moon by the deadline of 1970 it is as nothing compared to the troubles besetting the scientific project to bore a hole into the interior of the earth. Project Mohole, sometimes ironically called Project No-hole, has been on the boards for nearly seven years, yet the results have been for the most part confusion and conflict. While the cost of boring through the earth's crust is only a small fraction of trying to reach the moon, it is nevertheless a highly complex and difficult undertaking.

A crude analogy is dangling a piece of macaroni from the top of the Empire State Building in New York and trying to put it through the hole in a Lifesaver on the sidewalk. The hole in the earth's crust must be drilled beneath an ocean depth of two to three miles, depending on the site chosen. Then through three miles of the earth's surface. This means a drill string about 35,000 feet long or almost twice as long as anything hitherto used in the deepest oil wells.

Recently the National Science Foundation, with overall responsibility, announced a new start for Mohole. Dr. Leland Haworth, head of the foundation, appointed Gordon G. Lill, noted geologist, as director of the project. Lill was chairman of the committee of members of the National Academy of Science that first conceived the project of boring through several layers of the earth's crust to the mysterious mantle known as the Mohorovicic Discontinuity after its Yugoslav discoverer.

The Lill appointment will hopefully put an end to the fierce tussling among scientists, politicians and engineers marking Mohole. As an example of how to bungle a great scientific adventure Mohole could hardly be improved on.

At the same time Dr. Haworth approved the plans of the contractor for constructing a $47,000,000 mobile platform to carry out the ocean drilling. This apparatus, so huge that it cannot transit the Panama Canal, would be equipped to do both the intermediate and the final drilling, thereby ending a dispute with the scientists who insisted that a relatively inexpensive test stage should come first.

The heart of the conflict has been over the contractor and how the contract was awarded. The most persistent critic has been Sen. Gordon Allott (R.-Colo.), heretofore friendly to the aims of the National Science Foundation as a member of the Senate subcommittee allocating funds to the foundation.

The science foundation called for bids for Mohole. The four bidders rated highest in ability combined the know-how of big oil companies with scientific groups. No. 1 was Socomey Mobil, which has an installation in Colorado. No. 2 was an unexpected entry, the big construction firm of Brown and Root, Texas. After another go-round with the science foundation, Brown and Root, which had only limited experience in deep drilling and only one PhD on its staff, came out as No. 3.

The real surprise was when Brown and Root got the contract. Part of the surprise was that while the foundation had in the first go-round stressed the no-fuss aspect of the bidding, Brown and Root had been the only one of the top five to include a fee in its cost estimates. That fee was $1,800,000 and critics say that with other provisions it will go to $7,000,000.

In a lengthy speech on the Senate floor Senator Allott asked why the contract went to Brown and Root. He also demanded to know why the Democrats on a straight party vote had twice refused to grant staff experts to the Republicans to match at least in part the Democratic experts. This, he said, could have avoided "what is going to be a catastrophe in the field of science."

The critics have thus far distastefully avoided a fact that is no secret in Texas. George Brown, head of the firm of Brown and Root, has been one of Lyndon Johnson's closest friends and allies. In each of his campaigns beginning in 1937 the relationship with the Brown and Root firm has been raised. One of the most highly rated construction firms in the nation, Brown and Root got the NASA contract for the Houston space centre which will total perhaps $500,000,000. The latest move may put Mohole on the right course. Part of the urgency was a race with the Russians for inner space as well as outer space. The Soviet Union announced it is giving up its own Mohole. So perhaps there is time enough — and money enough — to carry the job to success.

Peculiar World

Ballast of Dirty Books

By CASSANDRA from London

In the old days—good or bad—there was a strict convention, as formally observed as a solemn church ceremony, that dirty books should be bound in wordless covers or discreetly wrapped in brown paper.

They were surreptitiously handed around with furtive excitement and locked away in drawers for secretive consultation by candlelight.

Now the tiny streams of pornographic books have swollen into great rivers of printed filth that cannot be tucked away beneath the lonely cot or concealed in the petite excoire.

So vast is this tide of prudency that HM Customs, who cop most of the muck, are now placed in a most curious jam. In the old days they used to burn the stuff (it must have been an interesting ceremony) but now, since their furnaces are in a smokesome zone, they are forbidden to do so because dirty books, very correctly in my view, give off black smoke.

So they don't know where to put hundreds of tons of "What the Butler Saw"—in more than fifty-seven varieties. To add to the burdens of those who look after our morals, the Americans, who also have their disposal problems about where to place their confiscated obscenity, have hit upon the idea of sending thousands of tons of cast off four-letter literature to Great Britain. They are now shipped to this country as unpolluted ballast for vessels travelling light where the freight rates are dirt—I said dirt—cheap.

It's a mad, mad world.

A few days ago I was heartily bawled out in a lively newspaper called Newday, which is published in Long Island, U.S.A.

The cause of one of their correspondents' wrath was that after the horrible assassination of President Kennedy, I had commented on the strange mood of violence that lies latent—and sometimes not so latent—within American society.

However, it seems that some of my views are at least partly shared in Washington, where official hearings have begun to restrict the sale of firearms through the post.

Extraordinary things have happened since Lee Oswald posted his twenty dollars to Chicago to get the rifle by mail order with which he murdered John Kennedy.

Sales of this type of rifle have sharply increased since the fatal shooting of November 22 and there has been a strong movement to preserve "the right of the people to keep and bear arms" which is provided for under the American Bill of Rights.

I was berated good and improper.

In the State of Texas, which is over three times the size of Great Britain, and has one-fifth of our population, they satisfy their more basic urges by committing over 800 murders a year.

In these islands we are content, on the last available statistics, with 159 homicides a year.

In the United States, where they kill each other faster than in almost any other country in the world, and where the number of murders has risen by five per cent in the last year, the urge to take life grows and swells like poison ivy on fertile and unholly ground.

When at the Senate committee in Washington to inquire into means of reducing the flow of guns into the hands of the citizenry was about to start its proceedings, a witness got up and explained carefully that the real purpose behind the plan to disarm the teen-agers was a Communist plot to reduce America to disarmed impotence.

At this, Senator Carl Hayden, a strapping 88, was introduced by a colleague as "the root-inest, toothiest sheriff Arizona ever had." The old party, born in 1878, then seized a pistol on his desk and bellowed: "Wh shall I shoot now?"

In the United States, where it is "the right of the people to keep and bear arms" in the name of liberty and freedom and where it is not a federal offence to murder the President,

Shakespeare's Tomb

What's Inside?

From the Toronto Daily Star

THIS spring is the 400th anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare. It should be made the occasion for opening his tomb in the Stratford church and seeing what is, or was, inside.

Controversy has raged for several centuries over the identity of Shakespeare. Was the London actor and later Warwickshire squire of that name the author of the plays? Did the man we know as Shakespeare ever live in Stratford, or was he some other person of higher education; for instance, Lord Bacon?

No Shakespeare manuscript exists. Perhaps some were put into that tomb. Or, more likely—if Shakespeare was Shakespeare—literary admirers such as Ben Jonson may have tossed written tributes to the post-playwright into the grave as he was being buried (in 1616).

There have been perennial demands that the tomb be opened you can, if you so wish, buy a Bazooka.

A Bazooka, if you don't know it, is an anti-tank weapon.

Let me quote you from an advertisement: "Achtung! Here is the acme of all German ordnance. The original Bazooka used by German troops to smash American and British forces all over Europe. We have these weapons in two varieties. The Wehrmacht model is a regular drab color. The other is the camouflage color model used by fanatical SS troops in the Battle of the Bulge. Price, complete with shield, $24.95."

Anybody can buy this equipment in non-violent America. Two young feller-me-lads from New Jersey in an experimental mood purchased one of these weapons.

They aimed it at a farmer's shed in which there was a tractor. When the dust settled there was no farmer's shed and a highly ground-up tractor.

A million mail-order guns have been sold during the last twelve months in the United States and a very substantial proportion of them went to people with criminal records. In New York City, 266 people have been killed or wounded in the last twelve months by these weapons.

When I first wrote my piece about the mood of violence that broods over the United States which brought so much American wrath about my head, I thought I was right.

Come to think of it now, I still do.

Another Look

IN Canada, we have been subjected to, and probably influenced by, the torrent of abuse that the United States press and the United Nations have cheerfully heaped on Britain for its "colonialism" but it is surely time to take a second look.

Three separate African governments have shown sufficient trust in British troops to call them in to keep order, within weeks of obtaining their "uhuru."

Now the parrot cry of the Quebec separatists is "colonialism." A Paris committee has been set up to publicize their "cause" and to seek support from de Gaulle's France for an appeal to the United Nations for help against Canadian "colonialists."

Democracy is beginning to get a new name.

No Mistake

In the Colonist recently mention was made of the Cadboro Bay Beach Gang of the 30s.

I came to Victoria, on a one-way ticket, early in June, 1935. Being English I went for a long walk the first evening. I was here, my steps taking me to Cadboro Bay. It was after dusk and, seeing a bonfire on the beach, I walked down there. Seated round the fire was a large group of young people, mostly teen-agers, singing the old favorites, to the accompaniment of a guitar played by a youth. For 10 minutes or more I stood well back in the shadows enjoying the scene, and I felt I had never seen a happier or healthier lot of young people.

As I walked back to town along the wooded Cedar Hill Cross Road I thought of those young faces in the glow of the blazing logs and I knew I had made no mistake in deciding to make my home in Victoria.

VIDENS

Well Defended

You report the organizers of civil defence think we will appreciate their force more if emphasis is placed on protecting us from earthquakes, etc.

In the past national disasters have been capably dealt with by the army, navy, air force, police and Red Cross.

Why do we need CD? We are the most "defended" people since the beginning of time. And at what a cost!

A. P. RAINEY, 577 Transit Road.

Sales Tax

It was quite refreshing to note a government member suggesting the removal of the sales tax on meals over a dollar, but why stop there? I suggest the whole tax system be revised.

I believe the sales tax is the cause of increased wage demands. Take young married folk starting out to purchase a home, furniture, and all the essentials that go to make a home. It takes money, the most part it comes from wages. The result, they jump on the gravy train, which means inflation, and we sure have it, which goes on and on; finally the showdown or bust. History has a habit of repeating itself ever since the beginning of time.

TAXPAYER

In Kenya

Skulking Danger

By ALASTAIR MATHESON from Nairobi

ALTHOUGH Kenya is now an independent state with its own African government it still finds itself menaced by a hard core of Mau Mau guerrillas. The government has now ordered a major drive against these lawless elements.

Only the terrorists know what they are still fighting for. The Kenya they once pledged to free from colonial rule is now independent, and the Kikuyu tribe to which all belong is now the dominant group in the country, with their leader Jomo Kenyatta as prime minister and five other Kikuyu as ministers in his cabinet.

The urge which sent them into the forests in 1952 to organize the struggle against British colonial rule was an understandable nationalistic motive. Now the vast majority of these Mau Mau fighters have laid down their arms and are being integrated by a sympathetic government back into society.

But some groups, suspicious even of Kenyatta and his African government, are still skulking in the forests with a variety of weapons, ranging from precision hunting rifles to the crudest of home-made guns—pieces of piping with mechanisms of springs, rubber bands and bent nails.

These men pose a potential threat to Kenyatta's government that cannot be allowed to continue, lest it form the nucleus for a militant opposition force which could one day be used to topple the government by unconstitutional means.

Since coming to power, Kenyatta has done his best to win over all these dissident elements. It might have been thought that as Kenyatta himself was imprisoned for being the manager of Mau Mau this would not have been difficult. However, there are many extreme Africans in Kenya who feel that the government is too moderate, too tolerant of whites and Indians. Some even take oaths against Kenyatta.

Wilely, Kenyatta made contact with forest fighters before Kenya became independent. Using trusted go-betweens, Kenyatta succeeded in convincing most leaders that Kenya would become truly independent on Dec. 12 last year. To those who refused to believe that the British would give Kenya up without a struggle, Kenyatta extended an invitation. "Send your representatives to Nairobi to see our new flag being raised at the uhuru ceremony," he told them.

And so, among the crowd which packed Nairobi's Uhuru Stadium for the historic ceremony, there was a handful of men dressed in skins and made distinctive by their bushy hair resting on their shoulders. Several still carried vicious-looking swords and pangas, but their guns had been hidden in the bushes before they entered the city.

Reports they took back to the forest convinced most Mau Mau leaders that Kenya had really achieved independence. Within the next few weeks, the forest fighters trooped out in their hundreds, greeted by ministers no longer as "terrorists" but as men who had fought to gain Kenya's freedom. It startled many to realize that about 2,000 of these men had been holding out—long after the emergency officially came to an end.

Those who emerged, under the terms of the amnesty declared on independence, refused to accept that they had "surrendered," but instead offered their support to the new government. They included a number of "generals" and even a few self-appointed "field marshals" who made it clear they regarded themselves as equals to the prime minister and his cabinet.

Negotiations that have been proceeding have revealed that many of these men expect to receive high offices in the new Kenya and they resent those politicians who did not take part in the violent struggle.

They also look down on those who managed to slip back unnoticed from the forests several years back and who have since settled down. They display little gratitude to those relatives and friends who risked much to send them food and help.

And a few, displeased with the new Kenya, have already returned with their followers into the forests determined to remain aloof. But the government cannot now overlook the fact that these few hundred armed men with their small "private armies" and forest armories are flouting the law and indulging in violence against ordinary people. One of the worst outbreaks has been northeast of Mount Kenya in the Meru area, where among those beaten up by disgruntled freedom fighters have been two members of Parliament.

The government has ordered the police to go all-out to prosecute these lawless elements. At this critical stage in Kenya's history it cannot allow the hard-core misfits of Mau Mau to grow into a Frankenstein.

MONTREAL—Gilles Ladouceur, 23, a former guard at St. Vincent de Paul prison, returned as a convict. He'll serve 10 years for armed robbery.

CHATTANOOGA—Judge William Miller, who tried Teamster chief James Hoffa on a conspiracy charge in 1962, declined to testify as a government witness in Hoffa's jury-tampering trial because it would be "an act of judicial impropriety."

PORTLAND—Mrs. William Releka, 40, given baboon kidneys in a transplant operation, died two days later.

GLASGOW—Forty girls went on strike in a cardboard box factory after Nan Reid, 15, was told to remove a picture of Beatie George Harrison from her overalls because it might catch in the machines.

LONDON—Banker Lord Macleay, a former colonial secretary, died at 78. The title goes to his son, Sir David Ormsby Gore, ambassador to the U.S.

SANTO DOMINGO—The Dominican Republic's confiscation tribunal ordered the property of 15 members of the family of the late dictator Rafael Trujillo forfeited to the state. The judgment barred any appeal.

TORONTO—Defence Minister Melnyk said reports that Canada is to get two atomic-powered submarines are "purely speculative."

MEXICO CITY—Quadruplets, all girls, have been born to Mrs. Juan Mendon, wife of a Mexican farmer—the first and last child arriving 40½ hours apart.

For Ruby Trial

Judge Says Dallas

DALLAS (AP)—The judge ruled Friday that Jack Ruby must go on trial in Dallas Monday for the murder of President Kennedy's accused assassin.

District Judge Joe Brown said he still might move the trial to another Texas city, as the defense has demanded — but first the lawyers must try to find 12 impartial jurors here. That will be the true test of whether Ruby can get a fair trial in Dallas, Judge Brown said.

Chief defence lawyer Melvin Belli said he is still convinced Ruby cannot get a fair trial in Dallas, and that he might spend an entire day questioning a single prospective juror.

District Attorney Henry Wade said he was pleased with the decision.

In ruling that Ruby's trial must begin Monday, Judge Brown said he was withholding a final ruling on the defence motion to transfer the case.

Selection of jurors will begin at 10 a.m. Monday in the courtroom of Judge Frank Wilson. Judge Brown will preside.

Judge Wilson's courtroom will seat more than 200 persons. Judge Brown's only 62.

Ruby is charged with murder in the killing of Lee Harvey Oswald, 24, the professed Marxist charged with assassinating President Kennedy here Nov. 22.

Brown Boosts Total Of Silent Witnesses

NEW YORK (UPI)—Thomas

Cosa Nostra's garment centre (Three-Finger Brown) Luchese and five members of his Cosa Nostra family ran the count of silent witnesses to 31 yesterday when they invoked the "Clam Act" in appearance here before a federal grand jury seeking to break the national crime syndicate.

Luchese led in pleading possible self-incrimination and refusing to answer the jury's questions about gambling, narcotics, loan-sharking and other illegal activities. Luchese, 63, is reputed boss of

The appearances of Luchese and his cohorts completed the first phase of U.S. attorney Robert Morgenthau's drive against the hoodlum empire in the New York area.

Propaganda On Priests Says Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE (UPI)—Haiti said yesterday it deported 18 Canadian Jesuits this week because "anti-government propaganda" and a "plan of general subversion" were found in the possession of two priests when they arrived here two weeks ago.

An agreement allowing the Society of Jesus to operate a seminary and other installations in this country was terminated the day the Jesuits were expelled.

Bladen Will Probe Cost of Education

OTTAWA (UPI)—The booming cost of higher education in Canada will be looked into by the man who conducted a royal commission inquiry into the country's auto industry three years ago.

Vincent Bladen, 64, dean of the faculty of arts and science at the University of Toronto, was named chairman Friday of a commission to study the financing of university and college learning in Canada. Bladen, a top-notch economist, made a penetrating study of the country's auto industry in 1960-61 when he was appointed a one-man commission by the federal government.

Because of the constitutional problems of education in Canada, this commission is being sponsored by the universities themselves, through the Canadian Universities Foundation.

Possessing Stolen Goods Brings Penitentiary Term

Donald Champion, 182 Joseph, who pleaded guilty last week to possession of stolen goods to a value of more than $13,000, was sentenced in city magistrate's court yesterday to 2½ years in the penitentiary.

Champion stood impassive in the prisoner's box as sentence was passed. He had shown no emotion throughout all of his courtroom appearances, which began Jan. 16 when he was first charged.

He pleaded guilty one week ago to 22 charges of possession of stolen goods over the value of $50; six charges of possession under $50, and one of breaking and entering and theft over $50.

Five character witnesses, including one whose stolen tools were recovered in a raid on Champion's home, attested to Champion's good character.

Defence counsel Ian Stewart asked that Champion receive a sentence of less than two years. He said he made little attempt to sell the stolen goods, but only seemed to be hoarding them.

He said Champion co-operated fully with the police to identify the goods "in an effort to relieve himself of the burden of his adventure of 14 months."

Crown prosecutor Peter Birkett said a prison sentence was called for because of the very nature of the offence, the value and variety of the goods involved, and the fact that Champion tried to sell or trade them over a considerable period of time.

In passing sentence, Magistrate Oatler said, "In spite of your wretched position now, your life is not over. You must serve your term, but your life can begin now if you want it to."

"One mistake, even though it's a major one, is not the end."

Champion was sentenced to 2½ years for breaking and entering; 2½ years for possession over $50, and 18 months for possession under $50. The sentences will run concurrently.

A woman with a criminal record dating back to 1941, but with no convictions in the past eight years, pleaded guilty in city court to forgery.

Court was told Mary Wood, 1139 Mason, received a cheque for $25 which had been sent to her in error by a woman in Syracuse, N.Y.

She received the cheque in December of 1962, but didn't cash it until August of 1963.

She was remanded to Feb. 21 for probation report and sentence.

A driving charge, laid nearly a year ago, caught up with a man in city court yesterday when Sidney Salmon, 731 Benton, pleaded guilty to driving while disqualified. He was fined $100.

Court was told Salmon was charged March 4, but had to enter hospital for an operation and was unable to answer his summons.

"You are at a stage now where you'll have to decide whether you're going to end up in jail or be a useful citizen."

St. Laurent Sailor Dies In Singapore

A sailor serving aboard the HMCS St. Laurent died Thursday in a Singapore hospital after sustaining severe brain injuries in a fall earlier this week.

L/S John W. O'Gorman, 28, 879 Dunsmuir, was serving on the ship on a cruise to the Far East.

The navy in Victoria has no details on where or how the fall occurred.

L/S O'Gorman is from Toronto. He is survived by his wife, Anne.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Rotary to Check Bids for Grants

Members of Victoria Rotary Club will meet Monday at 8:15 Vancouver Street to look over applications for fellowship grants. Such grants totaling $400,000 are awarded each year by Rotary International.

Students interested in learning more about the fellowships which provide one year's study in a foreign country should call Brian Whitlow at RV 3-3616.

From applicants a short list will be compiled, followed by the interviewing of the bidders. Rotary's selection committee will then choose a successful applicant.

Aussie Likes Brisk Wind

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Australia's Bruce Devlin and Texan Rex Baxter outbatted a frigid wind and their fellow pros Friday to share the midway lead in a $30,000 Tucson Open golf tournament with scores of 136, eight under par.

Devlin posted a 67, while power-hitting Baxter had a two-under-par 70 on the wind-blown desert 49ers Country Club course.

The 26-year-old Aussie didn't three-putt a green for the first time since arriving in the United States last month.

Ernie Vossler, who was deadlocked with Baxter at the end of the first round, blew to a 79 and 145 total. South Africa's Gary Player, the only one of the big three playing in Tucson, had his troubles with a 75 and 147.

SHARE SECOND

Sharing second place one strike behind the leaders were towering rookie George Archer of San Francisco and Jacky Cupit, a Texan now playing out of Corona, Calif. The six-foot, six-inch Archer posted a 69 for his 37, while Cupit came in with a 68.

Devlin's fellow countryman Bruce Crampton, despite three-putting a trio of greens, finished with a 70 and 138. He tied Mount Royal New Home For Sleds?

MONTREAL (CP) — Vic Emery, captain of the Canadian bobsled team that won a gold medal at the Innsbruck Winter Olympics, says Montreal should have a bobsled run on historic Mount Royal.

He told a press conference Thursday night the mountain park in the centre of the city "offers everything to make this country's first bobsled run a whirling success."

Emery said bobsledding could become a major sport here.

Thanks, Yanks

HAMILTON (CP) — Canada's Olympic champion four-man bobsled team being transported back from Europe courtesy of the United States Air Force. It was reported Friday, Vic Emery of Montreal, leader of the Olympic championship foursome, refused an interview on Hamilton radio station CHML on the refusal of Canadian authorities to ship the bobsled team home.

In Ottawa, Defence Minister Hellyer admitted the department had been approached to ship the sled back from Europe but said RCAF transport commitments were heavy.

He added that the department was not going to set a precedent for future athletes since the practice was contrary to RCAF regulations.

with San Diego's Chuck Courtney, who had a 71.

Al Bading of Toronto, who failed to finish Thursday before being overtaken by darkness, finished the first round Friday with a 70, then immediately started the second round. He carded a 76 on the second round for a 146.

After the 36 holes, the field was cut to the low 62 pros, and it took 148 or better to stay in.

Eye Test For Referee Demanded

SEATTLE (AP) — Eddie Cotton said Thursday he will insist upon an eye examination for the officials prior to his Feb. 21 light-heavyweight fight with Johnny Persol in Madison Square Garden.

Cotton's manager, George Chemers, made similar demands last year before Cotton met Chick Calderwood in Glasgow, Scotland. He was turned down, but his fighter won the decision.

Cotton said he decided to seek the eye test for judges of his next fight after watching the televised Feb. 7 battle between middleweights Joe Archer and Holley Mims. Archer was awarded a split decision.

Grew from Four Rinks to Eleven

School Spiel Returns to Birthplace

REGINA (CP) — The Canadian schoolboy curling championship, an event that first flickered to life in Regina 17 years ago, returns here next week for its 1964 edition.

Eleven rinks, representing all the provinces and Northern Ontario, will participate in a round-robin competition Monday through Friday for a trophy first fought for in 1947 by schoolboy champions from the three Prairie provinces.

From its modest beginnings here the championship expanded until in 1956 an entry from the province of Newfoundland gave it its present form.

Competition for the 44 young curlers from 11 high schools was to begin at 2:30 p.m. Monday, with the first of two draws that day. Two draws also were scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday, with the tempo increased to three draws Thursday before abating with a pair of draws Friday.

Five games, each consisting of 10 ends unless tie force extra play, will be run off in each draw. One team receives a bye in each draw, resulting in each team playing 10 games in the competition.

The rink facing the most pressure will be skipped by Doug Scheersmidt of Stettler, Costly Slice?

Called by Gene Sarazen as the most exciting golf match he's seen in 40 years takes place on Wonderful World of Golf Sunday afternoon (Channels 2 and 6 at 3:30 and 5 at 4 p.m.) when Stan Leonard of Vancouver plays George Knudson of Toronto at Capilano, North Vancouver. Stan watches his drive with interest, quite naturally when one considers $3,000 is at stake.

Colleges Eye Courts To Settle TV Scrap

NEW YORK (AP) — The colleges marshalled their forces Friday for an all-out fight — apparently all the way to the courts, if necessary — against the move to televise five National Football League football games next fall on Friday nights.

This time period, the colleges insist, is in the college and high school domain and any infringement by the pros is a violation of the federal anti-trust law passed in 1961.

To meet the emergency, Asa Bushnell, commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference and head of the college television program, arranged an emergency telephone conference of the college television committee to determine the next move.

The colleges, with support from the more than 12,000 members of the National Federation of High Schools, appear unyielding in their determination to keep Friday nights and Saturdays clear of pro competition.

ABC ADAMANT

The American Broadcasting Company is just as adamant in its plans to televise five NFL games Friday nights between Sept. 25 and Oct. 23.

The NFL's position in the dispute is that the arrangements with ABC is being made by individual clubs and not the league.

"We have announced our TV package—we have no contract with the ABC," NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle said.

The NFL earlier this year signed a television agreement with the Columbia Broadcasting System calling for $28,200,000 for two years—$14,100,000 in each of the next two years.

The five games involved in the newest controversy were held out of the original package. Because the five games are being negotiated with the individual clubs, and not the league, they are not covered by the law, the network says.

More Snow For Skiers

GREEN MOUNTAIN — Another 14 inches of new powder snow greeted Sno Birds Ski Club members at their Green Mountain area last night.

The total now is over 17 feet. Six inches of snow lay on the blacktop road leading to the base of the mountain and a grader was at work soon after.

Two tows are expected to be operating all weekend with limited snowmobile transportation. Drivers are urged to install chains.

Some Cops 'Bug' Him

Sinatra Jr. Admits a Lot But Denies Kidnap Hoax

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Frank Sinatra Jr., showing angry emotion in a bitter courtroom drama, Friday flatly denied attorney Gladys Root's charge he towed his own "little kidnap plot" to gain publicity.

For the first time in two days on the witness stand, young Sinatra's voice broke with emotion as the flamboyant woman trial lawyer demanded to know why he did not try to attract the attention of patrolmen at a roadblock after the Dec. 8 kidnap.

"I did not want it on my conscience that any man who was stupid or idiotic enough to kidnap me might blow the brains out of a police officer," he said.

"The truth is you would have wrecked your little kidnap plot which you arranged and it would not have been successful," asked Mrs. Root.

"That is not true," was the emphatic response.

Young Sinatra said a roadblock officer shouted at their car as it was coming to a halt, "I'll blow you right out of there if you don't stop," but the car was allowed to go through.

Another defence counsel, Charles Crouch, asked: "It is not true that you said, 'That SOB, who in the hell does he think he is?'—referring to the roadblock officer?"

Sinatra: "Yes." Crouch: "Did you also say, 'Cops like that bug me. If I ever have the power, I'll take care of guys like that?'"

Sinatra: "No, I did not say that... but I believe I did say something like it... but I did not refer to that particular officer."

He conceded telling two of the kidnapers shortly after he was abducted: "You won't believe me, but I hope you guys get away with this. I know what it is to be afraid. You guys really have guts."

Sinatra also said he told his kidnapers he would "do everything I can to help you."

"You guys don't have to worry about me," he admitted saying. "Don't worry about roadblocks."

But the 20-year-old singer also claimed he became so angry he once told the kidnapers "I would kill them or they would have to kill me if they didn't let me go."

"I felt my life was not worth anything at this point and when they were going to kill me."

He also testified he told his abductors: "Things have been going a little bad for me lately... I've been making only about $100 a week."

At one point, Mrs. Root noted he was left alone in the back seat of a car when a stop was made for gas and she asked if he was afraid.

He said: "I was frightened for my life and also for the life of the gasoline station attendant whose life was threatened by the No. 1 man—if I made any trouble."

Ranger Stalled

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Space Agency Friday indefinitely postponed launch of the next Ranger spacecraft mission designed to take close-up lunar photographs for the benefit of Apollo astronauts scheduled to land on the moon before 1970.

The agency said it still has not been determined why Ranger 6, launched Jan. 30, failed to get pictures of the moon's surface.

Other Nations

U.S. Plots To Cut Cuba Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Johnson administration has drafted plans to carry out a congressional directive halting aid to any nation whose ships or planes carry goods to Cuba.

Informed sources confirmed this Friday but government officials indicated they are under strict orders not to discuss details of the planned moves pending an official announcement, presumably today.

DEADLINE PASSED

The congressional mandate, written into the latest foreign aid bill, set midnight Friday as a deadline for affected governments to take appropriate action to keep their ships and planes away from Cuba.

A state department spokesman, Richard L. Phillips, said Friday the matter is under study and "final decisions will be made on a case-by-case basis." He noted that the law extends to the president authority to continue U.S. help if he finds it is "important to the security of the United States."

ONLY SIX

Phillips told reporters that of 16 countries listed as having sent ships or planes to Cuba, only six are receiving U.S. aid and only three of these — Greece, Turkey and Morocco — are getting any sizable assistance.

The more active traders with Cuba—such as Canada, Britain, Japan, France, West Germany, The Netherlands, Sweden, Belgium and Luxembourg — receive no U.S. aid.

Winner Prepares List For Shopping Spree

Winner of the Kinsmen Club of Victoria shopping spree at Woodward's Food Floor this morning is Mrs. Ann Pugh, 609 Niagara.

"Omigod!" was her reaction when her daughter, Mrs. R. C. May, 2500 Selwyn, broke the news to her.

Mrs. Pugh's name was drawn last night from all the pre-sale tickets for the Kinsmen Bingo Tuesday night in Memorial Arena.

She'll be driven to the shopping centre this morning and will have three minutes to pick up everything she wants in the food department.

"She's been to every one of our bingos," club president Gordon Brown said last night, "thirty-five of them in eight years, and this is the first time she's won anything."

"I think she's making out her shopping list tonight."

Mr. Brown said the club had given away $250,000 in eight years, including 40 automobiles, and raised $150,000 for the Kinsmen George Park, air cadets, Victoria University scholarships, Little League baseball teams and Saanich Health Unit.

Visitors Bureau Honors Bennett

Premier Bennett got a new honorary post yesterday—honorary life director of the Victoria Visitors Bureau.

At a meeting of bureau directors, the premier was elected to the position on motion of hotel manager Nick North. He will be informed of the decision by letter.

Bureau president G. Conway Parrott said the post does not carry voting privileges. The premier is the first person to be made an honorary life director of the bureau.

Destroyer

Warship Coming Here?

A new destroyer may be coming to the West Coast. The Mackenzie-class destroyer-escort HMCS Qu'Appelle, now attached to the Atlantic Command in Halifax, may head for Esquimalt this spring. TOTAL OF SIX.

This would bring the Fourth Canadian Escort Squadron to a total of six operational ships, one less than formerly.

HMCS Assiniboine was transferred to the East Coast after addition of helicopter deck and variable depth sonar.

HMCS St. Laurent, also reconverted, will join Atlantic Command on her return from exercises in the Far East with HMCS Fraser and Mackenzie.

The Qu'Appelle was commissioned at Davie Shipbuilding Ltd., Lauzon, Que., last September.

SIU Rival Starts Campaign

OTTAWA (CP)—With the full blessing of the Canadian Labor Congress, the fledgling Canadian Maritime Union has launched a membership drive among members of its arch-foe, the Seafarers' International Union of Canada.

The drive is being staged with great secrecy in a bid to sign up a majority of seamen employed by a small group of selected shipping companies.

The organizational foray opened with a letter to certain seamen from Newfoundland to the Lakehead, and is being followed up now with personal calls by CMU organizers.

Cuba Guilty Four Times

NEW YORK (UPI)—A five-nation inter-American investigating team has found Cuba guilty of aggression against Venezuela on four counts, it was learned Friday.

The investigators found Cuba has trained, armed, backed and financed Venezuelan guerrillas and terrorists seeking to overthrow President Betancourt. The Venezuelan charges were filed with the Organization of American States last Dec. 2.

WCB Inquiry Slated March 16

Bureau Record 'Pitiful'

The Victoria Visitors Bureau ended 1963 more or less in the black—but with a year's overall financial record described by the bureau's president as "pitiful."

Directors of the bureau yesterday discussed income- and expenditure record for 1963, its first year of operation. The record will go to the bureau's annual meeting Feb. 28 at the Empress.

GRANTS INCLUDED

The record shows receipts in the year ending Jan. 31, 1964, of $82,578—including grants of $50,000 from the city of Victoria, $1,250 from Oak Bay, $2,500 from Saanich and $300 from Esquimalt. Disbursements totalled $75,113.

Thus, the bureau spent $12,534 more than it took in in 1963. But it had $11,443 cash when it began the year, for a net cash over-expenditure of $1,090.

The report noted that, at Jan. 31, 1964, the bureau had outstanding claims for tax refunds from the governments of B.C. and Canada totalling $1,347.84.

VALUE AT COST

It also had an inventory of printed matter on hand valued at cost at $5,319.52.

Bureau president Conway Parrott said the over-all size of the budget is pitifully small.

Municipal contributions are for the most part satisfactory, he said, but business should contribute much more.

Municipal Contracts

'Easy Mark' Attitude Scored by Alderman

By IAN STREET

Some local contractors appear to regard municipal contracts as "an easy mark," Centennial Square committee was told yesterday.

Ald. A. W. Toone, committee chairman, was commenting on tenders received for the first stage of square landscaping, which all exceeded by a considerable amount the revised budget sum of $80,000.

The committee recommended to city council the contract be awarded to Conniston Construction Ltd., a Vancouver firm, which submitted the low bid of $95,536.

LOCAL FIRMS

Three other bids, all from local firms, were: George H. Wheaton, $109,481; Farmer Construction, $110,753, and M. P. Paine, $123,835.

Ald. Toone said the gap between original estimates and bids "seem rather fantastic." He added: "I'm not satisfied this is entirely due to the glut of local construction work at this time."

SOME BUILDERS

"The suspicion is rising in my mind," the chairman said, "that instead of Victoria contractors wanting to do a job on this project at a good price, some of our contractors look upon municipal government contracts as an easy mark."

Roderick Clark, special projects and architectural consultant, said he could not recall any period since 1945 when so many large construction projects were under way or about to be launched in Victoria.

AT LATER DATE

"This unusual situation," said Mr. Clark, "makes it extremely difficult to obtain tenders at prices which are at all competitive. There is no way we can control this situation; nor is it my recommendation that we wait until conditions change in our favor and recall these landscaping tenders at a later date."

City manager Dennis Young said the situation in which bids ranged from 37 per cent to 75 per cent above the original estimate of $80,000 for the first stage landscaping "should not be minimized."

SERIOUS SPOT

"It only amounts to some $26,000 on this contract," said Mr. Young, "but if the same situation develops on the $400,000 civic theatre contract then we will be in a serious predicament."

The manager said two Vancouver contractors had already refused to bid on the theatre job "because of the implications they feel are contained in the clause covering local preference."

FINANCIAL SENSE

Ald. Toone said he felt the clause could be left in but added it should be made quite clear it means "only when all things are equal in the financial sense does the local firm receive preference."

City council will be asked, at a special meeting Thursday at 2:30 p.m., to approve transfer of the $23,000 from the contingency fund and $5,000 from the second stage landscaping budget to meet the contract price.

'Important Job'

Civic Theatre Getting Manager

City council will be asked shortly to appoint a full-time manager for the civic theatre on Centennial Square which is to be called the McPherson Playhouse.

The committee in charge of planning for the $2,000,000 civic project yesterday authorized city manager Dennis Young to advertise the position. Replies to the ad will be screened by the special advisory committee on recreation and go to the council for the final decision.

Ald. A. W. Toone, committee chairman, said the advisory body recommended against having a single manager to run both civic theatre and Memorial Arena.

"The main thing now," said city manager Dennis Young, "is to get a manager without further delay."

Both Ald. Toone and Mr. Young agreed the manager should be installed while the theatre was still under construction. In other cities it has been proved this saves money in the long run and makes for a more efficient operation.

ENOUGH WORK

"There is the opening to be planned," the city manager said, "and enough work to keep the man that is appointed virtually living in the theatre for the next 18 to 24 months."

"This is a very important full-time job in a field where there is a definite scarcity of the product we require."

Mayor R. B. Wilson said that, in view of the shortage of time, he felt it was correct to appoint a manager first and then set up the body that would control overall operations of the new playhouse.

Provincial authorities informed the city the government is willing to pay one-third of the major portion of property that makes up the site for the proposed senior citizens' recreation centre.

FOR TWO LOTS

City officials said this will amount to $25,000.50 on the $77,000 paid by the city for two lots on the site. The remainder, originally city-owned property with some $12,500, isn't covered by the government's cost-sharing formula.

The committee approved calling tenders for the demolition of the two-storey apartments at Government and Flagard adjoining the Pantheon Theatre.

Truck Wheels

Langford Boy Run Over

A two-year-old Langford boy who was run over by the rear wheels of a truck Thursday was reported in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital last night.

Police said Robert Morneau, 908 Bray, suffered pelvic injuries when the truck, driven by Barry Kaehn, 2910 Leigh, backed over him at about 3:45 p.m.

Mr. Kaehn said he looked in both rear-view mirrors before backing the truck to make a fuel delivery, and could see nothing in his way.

Robert was taken to hospital by a next-door neighbor while Mr. Kaehn phoned Colwood RCMP. Police returned to the scene yesterday to complete their investigation.

It seems he parked there before police placed the signs.

Federal Ruling

Pair Joins Forces To Seek Back Pay

Ex-servicemen Thomas Moran and former dockyard worker Homer Hansen have rounded up a group of men who try to fight back-pay claims in court collectively.

Mr. Moran, 864 Colville, started the roundup after he was told he would not receive about $180 back pay allotted to other government employees for seven months last year when he worked at Veterans' Hospital as a nursing orderly.

First to get in touch with Mr. Moran, who appealed for support through the Colonist, was Mr. Hannam, 507 Springfield, who found he was in a similar position. Mr. Hannam expected about $100 back pay for work he did at the Esquimalt dockyard between November, 1962, and May, 1963.

DIDN'T QUALIFY

He, too, was told he did not qualify for the money because he did not work for the government on July 8, when the treasury ruling was announced. Since then Mr. Moran and Mr. Hannam have tried to find other people in similar circumstances. So far, they have traced a further 10 or 11 people.

"We plan to arrange a meeting soon," said Mr. Moran last night. "If there are enough of us and we can afford a lawyer we shall try to fight our cases jointly in court."

"It's not the money I'm worried about—it's the principle of the matter. There must be hundreds of people throughout the province who have suffered in the same way."

Mr. Moran ended eight years' DVA service last July when he went to work at Royal Jubilee Hospital. But when a federal treasury ruling entitled other government employees to back pay, Mr. Moran was told he was not entitled to any cash because he no longer worked for the government.

First to get in touch with Mr. Moran, who appealed for support through the Colonist, was Mr. Hannam, 507 Springfield, who found he was in a similar position. Mr. Hannam expected about $100 back pay for work he did at the Esquimalt dockyard between November, 1962, and May, 1963.

MARTHA MACNEIL

Building figures are up for January, 1964, in all Greater Victoria municipalities but the city itself.

Saanich led the list with more than double the 1963 figure. The two student residences at Victoria University Gordon Head campus account for nearly half of their $1,257,475 total.

Victoria's permits, while up in number from 518 to 554, are down almost $500,000. Esquimalt and Saanich had the same number of permits this January as last, but their value has increased.

Five Times '63 Total

In the case of Esquimalt the value of permits at $278,328 is nearly five times last year's figure. Biggest item is a $190,000 apartment building being built on Lamson by Congdon Construction. Dwelling permits nearly doubled at $71,050.

In the city seven single-family dwellings were started last month to equal the number started in January, 1963. The total permit value of these was slightly higher this year at $98,000.

Dwellings in Oak Bay dropped from 13 at $236,296 in 1963 to five at $92,000 last month.

Here are the figures:

	January 1964	January 1963
Victoria permits	554 for $ 682,569	518 for $1,167,414
Oak Bay permits	30 for $ 278,845	51 for $ 256,983
Esquimalt permits	14 for $ 278,328	14 for $ 61,837
Saanich permits	79 for $1,257,475	79 for $ 498,302

Another Theft In Oak Bay

Another house was reported broken into in the Oak Bay area last night but it was not known if anything was taken.

The owner, Mrs. A. E. Alexander, 2800 Lincoln, was out of town.

Burglars entered by breaking a bedroom window. It was the fourth break-in in Oak Bay in the past week.

Veteran Victorians Hail an Amalgamation

Former and present directors of Victoria branch, British Columbia Automobile Association, met for dinner last night at Union Club to pay tribute to Victoria Auto Club, amalgamated with BCAA after 58 years. Some of club's longest-serving members, left to right, are W. T. Strath, Maj. H. Cuthbert Holmes, Len Woodhouse, Frank Mulliner and George I. Warren.—(Bud Kinsman)

Welfare Fighter City-Bound

Not only will Mrs. Bridget Moran, Prince George social welfare worker, continue her fight for better welfare conditions—she will also bring the fight to Victoria on her own time.

Mrs. Moran, who protested to the government that welfare services in Prince George are inadequate, says she is not planning a march on Victoria but will simply come down to hear the debate of the welfare department's estimates.

TIME COMING

"I only work three days a week and I have some time coming, so I shall be doing it on my own time," she told the Colonist.

She hopes to speak to Welfare Minister Black.

Mrs. Moran feels strongly disturbed children of today will be the delinquent adults of tomorrow.

She said she has been in the Prince George area for 10 years and has seen this happen now a delinquent adult "expecting her fifth child which we shall be supporting."

She told of an disturbed child who we shall be supporting."

Joke Backfires

Premier Bennett yesterday sent a $20 bill across the floor of the House as a joke, but later it backfired.

He sent the money during a bill in an otherwise chaotic sitting when Arthur Turner (NDP, Vancouver East) said he would always go abroad at said.

"Unless we look after today's disturbed children in the community we shall be forced to look after them in institutions in the future which will prove more expensive," she said.

Mrs. Moran denied she had any intention of resigning but agreed the fact she recently became pregnant and would take time off to have her baby, as she has done in the past, might have prompted such speculation.

Mrs. Moran complains that not only are there too few social workers in her area but also there are no resources, specialists, treatment centres or homes.

Candida Solid Production

By BERT BINNY

Attributed to Voltaire are the words: "I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

It is possible and, indeed, convenient to amend this saying slightly and apply the result to the characters in most of George Bernard Shaw's plays and many others as well.

Thus: "I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death the way you say it."

THEORIES, OPINIONS

Victoria's Bastion Theatre is producing Shaw's Candida, which, like so many of this author's plays, is full of disquisitions, assertions, theories and opinions.

There is little actual action, so that the success of the production which opened officially last night depends almost totally on speech and delivery.

The characters have to establish themselves early and sound terribly convinced as to the complete validity of what they say. Then, no matter how much one may disagree with their various theses, they will be acceptable and real.

As Morell, actor-director Peter Mannering accomplished all this to complete satisfaction. He is always quite assured, his delivery is exemplary, he invites and commands audience attention.

No other player established himself or herself with quite the same dispatch. Some took longer than others. Sheila Litt as Candida was admirable, and Joyce Stuart's Miss Garnett, once established, was consistently sound and believable.

As Burgess, Stanley Bowles played excellently except that both he and John Bergbusch in the rather difficult part of Marchbanks sometimes became hard to follow through indistinct speech.

Ian McIntyre as Lexy was quite satisfactory; he had reason enough to appear rather more virile than would normally be expected of a Victorian curate.

Some People Unwilling To Cope

Some teachers and social workers are not "willing to cope," Dan Campbell (S.C. Comox) said yesterday.

A man, "23 and single," recently went to the north to do social work "with the idea he would be able to discover there a cure for prostitution and alcoholism," he told the legislature.

OWN EXPERIENCES

Mr. Campbell told about his own experiences as a teacher with no training when he was a youth of 19 in Haisla in the Cariboo in 1947.

He said he was expected to be not only the school teacher but also father, confessor. He even helped deliver a baby.

"We were willing to cope," he said.

"I am satisfied there are people out in the field who don't quit when the going gets tough."

On pedestrian safety Mr. Campbell said school children were not "as well looked after as when we were kids."

He said they should be trained to stop, look and listen instead of relying on all motorists stopping for flashing lights on school buses.

EVERYONE'S JOB

Referring to the killing of trumpeter swans at Campbell River, he said that "if an individual is convicted of an offence such as this, the only way to get his licence back would be to have him appear before a citizen's group."

He said if young people were tried for traffic infractions by groups of their peers it would cut down on offences and the RCMP could be phased out of traffic work to free them for more important assignments.

'Our Morals Are Slipping'

"Our morals are slipping," C. W. MacSorley (S.C. Burnaby) told the House yesterday.

The requirement up north, he said, was "not for one man but for a regiment of social workers"—but when morals are slipping, you can't hire people to raise them for you.

"This government will assist every way it can but you can't say every social welfare case is the fault of the government."

"Social welfare does not create the problems. No, we are the ones who try to solve them."

Tobacco Roads?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vigorous welfare action is needed to prevent the roads to development of the Peace and Columbia Rivers becoming "twin Tobacco Roads," a university social work authority says.

Prof. W. G. Dixon, director of the UBC school of social work, said: "Unless we take vigorous action on a community level the road to the Peace and the road to the Columbia can be twin Tobacco Roads in terms of the lives of the people."

Poles Chase Wild Bear

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—A wild bear has been sighted near Grojec, 15 miles south of Warsaw, and forest guards are trailing him through the countryside. The population has been warned, but the bear will not be shot, since there are only about 20 bears living free in Poland and they are under special care.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Appearance can be pretty important in vegetables. A scabby potato can taste just as good as a clean-skinned spud, but not if you see it first, before it has been peeled, boiled and mashed: the revolting appearance of the scabbed skin cannot help but affect the appetite.

Because appearance contributes so much, one of the regrets of my life is that I cannot grow those beautiful prize carrots with long, slim, evenly-tapered roots—varieties such as Gold Pak and Emperor. You need a great depth of topsoil for these beauties, and it should be a rich but somewhat sandy loam, deeply worked, fertile but with no undecomposed manure in it, and well limed. My shallow topsoil cannot come anywhere near these specifications, so I must content myself with the short, stumpy kinds.

We grow a carrot called Touchon, which I believe is an improved selection from Scarlet Nantes Coreless. It makes a root about six inches long with small tops and bright orange flesh, tender, crisp and sweet, fully grown in about 70 days from seed. Not that we leave them in the ground that long—like our beets, we pull our carrots very young, when not much bigger than your middle finger.

I should warn you Touchon is not a particularly good carrot for storing, although some readers tell me they have maintained a winter supply by burying them in boxes or barrels of damp sand in a cold basement or root cellar. Winter carrots we buy at the supermarket, for our basement is too warm and our garden space is too limited to grow enough carrots to make storing worthwhile. If you want a good keeper, grow Red Core Chantenay or Royal Chantenay.

A couple of years ago, a U.S. seedman sent me a sample packet of seeds of a carrot called Tenderheart to try out. It made a remarkably handsome specimen, and if you like a very sweet carrot, I can recommend this one. We found it actually too sweet for our taste—it was too sugary and lacked the typical carrot flavor. I think its mother must have had an affair with a sugar beet!

Because we like to pull our carrots in the baby stage of growth, we never put in very much seed at any one time. Succession sowings are made every couple of weeks all summer to provide a small but uninterrupted supply of the little fellows, with the last seeds going into the ground around Labor Day to give us a feed of delicious baby carrots for our Christmas dinner.

When you make up your vegetable seed order, I'd like to suggest you include a packet of cress or peppergrass. This is not watercress, nor is it the broad-leaved cress beloved by English gardeners in their mustard-and-cress salads. This one is quite different, with a finely cut and frilly leaf rather like parsley.

Use it in much the same way as you would parsley, as a garnish, in sandwiches and salads and in soups and stews, or chopped like chives into omelets or cottage cheese. The flavor is more pungent and peppery than parsley but the stuff is a whole lot easier to grow—just stick the seeds in the ground and up it comes.

Make frequent sowings through the spring and summer, but put in just a little at a time—not more than a yard or two of row—and it isn't a bad idea to put up a plant or two in the fall to sit on the kitchen windowsill to provide garnish through the winter months.

JACK SMITH Says It with Flowers

Teeth Perfect Collateral

Tony Albert is the proprietor of a flower shop I frequent. The other day he closed the most fascinating transaction in his history, although it grossed only $6.24 and he figures he lost money.

It began in early January, when a young lady telephoned to ask about a credit arrangement. She and her sister and brother, she explained, wanted to order a bouquet to give to their mother and father on their wedding anniversary.

The girl said her name was Debbie and she was eight years old.

"I remembered the children," Tony told me. "They come in the flower shop sometimes when their mother's in the dress shop next door."

He agreed to extend credit. He can no more resist a lisp than I can.

He made up a French flower cart of spring flowers. He marked it at $6. It was delivered as ordered.

"It was the most delightful arrangement I've ever seen," the children's mother said later. "I—you know—got tears in my eyes."

Three weeks later Debbie walked into Tony's shop to make her first payment. She had 52 cents. It was her plan, she declared, to pay the entire 52 cents on account. But then she thought better of it. She wondered if she might give him 26 cents and keep 26. A girl can't afford to be penniless in this world.

While Tony was weighing this proposal Debbie made an exaggerated grin to show him her teeth. She wiggled three of them with a plump finger, to demonstrate that they were loose and about ready to come out.

"When they come out," she explained, "I get a dollar for each one."

Tony, who used to get a dime for his own baby teeth, reflected on the mysteries of inflation. But he could not doubt the reliability of such collateral. He agreed to accept the 26 cents.

It was Debbie's sister, Patty, 11, who made the next payment. This was a substantial $3.88. Tony gave her a receipt. Discreetly, he avoided asking about Debbie. He supposed she was having trouble with her teeth.

This week Debbie and Patty came in to clean up the bill. They paid $1.88, which included tax. Tony couldn't help wondering if Debbie had sold her teeth to raise the money. He was feeling a little like Shylock.

"No, Mithter Albert," she said, showing him her teeth were all in place. "They got hard again."

"They had 50 cents left over after making the final payment," Tony told me. "They wanted to know if they could use it for a down payment on a birthday bouquet. I said certainly. They can have two years to pay, for all I care."

And why not? Debbie's teeth are money in the bank.

Insects Wage War On Behalf of Man

By LYNN POOLE
of The Johns Hopkins University

Accusations have been flying thick and fast between people who do or do not feel that spraying of insecticide is dangerous to our lands, animals or people. Right or wrong, the spraying is done to rid us of billions of insects.

The argument has been waged over the dangers of spraying. Few have thought to speak up for the insects that protect crops and prevent the loss of billions of dollars each year. University laboratories and the United States Department of Agriculture have been importing insects that will wipe out more virulent pests and save crops.

One of the most recent importations was a group of four insects to destroy Klamath weed that blighted more than 2,000,000 acres in Northern California, and over 3,000,000 acres in adjoining states.

Known as St. John's Wort in its native Europe, Klamath weed first made its way into California in the early 1900s. It flourished, crowded out valuable animal forage plants and covered grazing lands with poisonous yellow flowers that poisoned sheep and cattle.

Within two decades Klamath weed brought major disaster—ranchers went bankrupt, chemical attacks against it were too costly.

The problem intrigued entomologist James K. Holloway. With others, he investigated the possibilities of insects known to attack Klamath weed, none of which were already at work against the weed in Australia. Such a program involves the

Far-Away Places

RCN Sailing Seven Seas

The white ensign is putting in an appearance all over the world this month in places as far apart as Midway and the Mediterranean.

Ports of call for the Esquimalt-based frigates HMCS Beacon Hill, Antigonish and St. Therese are Valparaiso, Chile (Feb. 17 to 24), Callao, Peru (Feb. 29 to March 4), Acapulco, Mexico (March 13 to 16).

More than 50 cadets, members of the first class of the navy's short service officer plan, are aboard the frigates.

In the Far East the destroyer escorts HMCS St. Laurent, Fraser and Mackenzie have visited Pearl Harbor, Midway, Guam, and Manila, capital of the Philippines, during a training and goodwill cruise.

NOW AT SINGAPORE

They are now at Singapore and will make calls at Port Swettenham, Malaysia; Hong Kong and Tokyo.

The Halifax-based Fifth Canadian Escort Squadron is carrying out training exercises in the Mediterranean.

Banquets, Parades, Contest

Lots Doing in Scout Week

There'll be a lot of father-and-son dinners in the Victoria area next week.

Next week is the annual Boy Scout week, in which 3,500 Victoria Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs will honor their movement's founder, the late Lord Baden-Powell, and do what they can to bring their movement to the attention of the community at large.

Jack Scrivener, executive commissioner of the Victoria region for the Scouts, said last night father-and-son banquets, church parades and a Victoria area-wide Scout window-decorating contest will highlight observances of the week here.

It's a little difficult to enumerate exactly everything that will be going on, he said, because each of the region's eight districts and, to some extent, each of the 67 Scout groups in the region, has its own plans to mark the week.

But father-and-son or parent-and-son banquets and church parades Sunday, Feb. 23—the nearest Sunday to the birthday of Baden-Powell—will be usual methods of marking the week, he said.

Mr. Scrivener said the window-decorating contest is being held for the first time in several years. Each of the eight districts will pick a window and a winner from the eight will be chosen to receive a prize, a piece of camping equipment.

Most of the decorated windows will be lent by commercial firms, he said. Some of the displays will be live, with Cubs and Scouts showing scouting skills.

Scouts and Cubs will be encouraged to wear their uniforms to school during the week.

Typical of the many other ways Scout Week will be marked next week, he said, is a minstrel show to be staged Wednesday night in St. Mary's Anglican Church Hall by the 12th Garry Oak troop.

PARADE PLANNED

All the groups from the Cadboro Bay-Oak Bay district—expected to number about 1,000 boys—will parade to St. Mary's Church from the Shop Easy parking lot in Oak Bay Village Feb. 23. They will form up at 1:30 p.m. and move off at 2 p.m.

Raising and lowering of the flag at Oak Bay municipal hall will be the responsibility of the 3rd Scout Troop all during Boy Scout week.

Scouts, Leaders Award Winners

Scout Frederick Gunderson, 13, of the First Saltair Troop, Mt. Brenton District, Ladysmith, has won a gilt cross for gallantry after saving nine-year-old Flynn Millard last July from drowning in Davis Creek.

Frederick is among Scouts and Scout leaders who won awards in the B.C.-Yukon awards list announced yesterday.

Ian Donald Hamer, assistant regional commissioner (Rover), Greater Victoria Region, won the silver acorn for specially distinguished services. Mr. Hamer came to Victoria from Calgary in 1945 as assistant district commissioner. He has the long service medal and medal of merit.

Frank H. Crocker, 1786 Fairfield, past president, Fort Victoria district, received a certificate of merit for good service to scouting.

Cyprus Crisis

Peace
Effort
Flops

AP - Reuters

NICOSIA—U.S. Undersecretary of State George Ball's efforts to sell President Makarios of Cyprus a British-U.S. peace plan collapsed Friday. Diplomats said Makarios will present the Cyprus crisis to the United Nations Security Council.

The bearded chief of state—who has said that "when I have certain ideas I will not compromise"—rejected the proposal for landing of an international peace-keeping army outside UN control.

Ball said the search will continue for a solution to bring peace and order out of the communal fighting between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots, in which three Turkish-Cypriots were reported shot dead Friday.

UNEASY ALLIES

Then Ball flew off in a U.S. Air Force jet plane to brief government officials of Turkey and Greece, uneasy allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, on the outcome of three days of discussions which he and a special British envoy, Cyril Phipps, conducted in Nicosia.

Both U.S. and British diplomats strongly urged Turkey against independent intervention.

ISSUE WARNING

Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu was reported to have warned the U.S., British and Greek governments that urgent steps must be taken to restore security.

Landing in Ankara for talks with Inonu and Foreign Minister Feridun Cemal Erkin, Ball told reporters he was gripped by the situation on Cyprus, "which we found very critical."

BRING RETURN

"We are determined to find a solution," he said. "This is needed for the sake of Cyprus as well as for world peace. The United States, in collaboration with our ally Britain, will search for ways which would bring the return of order and security."

Ball will go next to Athens, then to London.

A Cypriot government spokesman announced Foreign Minister Spyros Kyprianou will fly to New York in preparation for placing the issue before the Security Council next week. This is in line with a call by Premier Khrushchev one week ago for a settlement by the Security Council and Cyprus itself.

MLAs' Tribute to Chicago

Turner
... safety catch

Two-Bit
Charge Dropped

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative
Reporter

The hearts and flowers tradition of Feb. 14 exploded into a legislative Valentine's Day massacre yesterday.

One minute the house heard a moving tribute to former women MLAs and the next minute the epithets crackled and ricocheted like the slugs which mowed down a clutch of Chicago gangsters just 35 years before.

The day started on a happy note when Lois Hagen (NDP—Grand Forks-Greenwood) thanked Premier Bennett for a Valentine bouquet.

Within minutes the verbal bullets were flying.

Arthur Turner (NDP—Vancouver East) released the safety catch when he broached the subject of conflicting statements over the proposed Bank of British Columbia.

What followed was the noisiest afternoon of the session. Speaker William Murray's crashing gavel could hardly be heard at times as he tried to restore order.

On the heels of Mr. Turner's unfinished opening remarks came these salvos:

● Premier Bennett called Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane a "two-bit lawyer."

● North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson said either Premier Bennett or Canada's bankers had lied.

● Mr. Bennett said the conflicting statements about the bank were the result of a misunderstanding.

● Mr. Turner challenged the premier to make a statement Monday to reconcile the apparent conflict.

Cause of the fracas was a statement by Premier Bennett last Friday that Canada's chartered banks had been asked to establish their head offices in B.C. before the provincial government had deemed it necessary to promote its own bank. A number of bankers denied they were approached.

REPORTS QUOTED

Mr. Turner opened his speech by referring to newspaper clippings and quoting from reports of what the bankers had said.

One had termed the premier's claim "rubbish" and others had branded it untrue.

Suddenly a white-faced Premier Bennett leaped to his feet, shouting: "Mr. Speaker, I think this has gone far enough."

HONOR INVOLVED

When opposition members told him to sit down he said he was talking on a point of personal privilege. His honor had been brought up before on this matter.

He said he had asked the heads of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, The Royal Bank of Canada, The Toronto-Dominion Bank, the Bank of Montreal and the Bank of Nova Scotia.

WASN'T THOSE

"Either the bankers are not telling the truth or else the premier is not telling the truth," said Mr. Turner.

"They are not lying either," shot back the premier. "It wasn't those men."

Mr. Turner said the premier should have clarified the conflict earlier.

"Table the letters (to the banks)," called out Opposition Leader Strachan.

"I have clarified it now," said the premier.

Turkey Gets Ready

ANKARA, Turkey (Reuters)—The southeast Turkish port of Iskenderun has been cleared of civilian shipping and the main quay handed over to the control of the Turkish navy, according to unofficial reports from Iskenderun today.

The reports also said the Turkish army division in the Iskenderun area was at alarm stations.

Nosenko

WASHINGTON (AP)—Yuri I. Nosenko, Soviet secret police defector, told Russian and Swiss representatives in Washington Friday that he wants political asylum in the United States, the U.S. state department announced.

Press officer Richard I. Phillips said Nosenko's request will be granted. His disappearance from the Soviet disarmament delegation in Geneva Feb. 4 created a cold war sensation.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko accused the U.S. of "improper behavior" in the Nosenko case. He delivered a stiff oral protest to U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Koh.

Outcry Expected

End to Banks' Rule
Goal of Opposition

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—An opposition outcry for the head of Hal Banks of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada is expected to erupt at the session of Parliament starting Tuesday. With the shipping season about seven weeks away, opposition spokesmen say they will press the government for an early report from the three-man board of trustees over maritime unions on what they have done and plan to do in restoring democracy to the SIU.

Labor Minister MacEachren is expected to receive the trustees' report this month, and to table it in the Commons promptly.

NEW SMYRNA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—An explosion under the lead locomotive of a strike-bound Florida East Coast Railway freight train derailed 14 moving cars Friday night.

W. L. Thornton, chief operating officer of the railroad struck 12 months ago, said it was "another sabotage... an attempted murder."

Thornton said "there is now more than 300 such sabotage attempts... something of a national disgrace which goes back to the old moon squad racket."

Union spokesmen had no immediate comment.

Skillings

Privy Council
Skillings' Spot

North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson, stung by Waldo Skillings' rally Thursday night accusing him of being intoxicated during debate on the B.C. Electric takeover in 1961, got his revenge yesterday.

He had been studying Mr. Skillings' background in an attempt to learn why he would make such a remark, Mr. Gibson said.

The Oxford dictionary supplied the word "skilling," meaning "a shed or outhouse," Mr. Gibson said.

The House roared. "So from now on," the burly millionaire logger continued, "I am going to refer to him as the privy councillor."

Bennett's Door Stays Closed

Welfare Defector Going Home

Social welfare department defector Wallace du Temple tried to see Premier Bennett again yesterday and failed. Mr. du Temple, who added coals to the hot controversy over B.C.'s handling of social assistance by sending an open letter of resignation to the premier, said he expects to head back to Fort St. John Monday.

His resignation as a social worker was accepted with stunning alacrity Thursday. He had said the way welfare is administered he found it impossible to cope with conditions of prostitution, drunkenness and juvenile delinquency in his huge bailiwick north of Fort St. John.

He flew here at his own expense, hoping to talk to the premier Thursday, but he wasn't able to get an appointment.

Yesterday, he phoned the premier's office at 10 a.m. and was told he would be called back.

But no call came, so late in the afternoon he called again.

"A secretary in the premier's office told me she wasn't able to get in touch with the premier today," Mr. du Temple said.

Mr. du Temple said his stand was winning strong demand in the north for better social services.

A telegram he received from prominent people in Fort Nelson said the community is demanding a full-time social worker.

In his letter Mr. du Temple had named Fort Nelson as one of the trouble spots in his district.

Because his territory included 1,100 miles of road and a widely scattered population he could never be in the place he was needed most. He said a Fort Nelson social worker was essential.

Mr. du Temple's case was raised in the legislature by North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson, who said that, right or wrong, the case should be fully aired before the legislative welfare committee.

He noted Welfare Minister Black was out of the House and said he should be on a plane to Fort St. John to investigate Mr. du Temple's charges.

The ex-social worker had "looked like a man of character," said Mr. Gibson, and it was a disgrace his story wouldn't be heard by the committee.

He charged Mr. Black with "running an awfully, awfully poor department."

Somalia Bombed

MOGADISCIO, Somalia (UPI)—Ethiopian planes Friday bombed and strafed the town of Dolo on Somalia's northwestern border, according to Somali sources here.

'How Can You Expect A Proper Job Done?'

FORT NELSON (CP)—Community leaders have wired the provincial government asking for a full-time welfare officer. The demand, above 20 signatures, came after Wallace du Temple, government social worker at Fort St. John, was fired for saying his job was impossible. His area included Fort Nelson.

Several of the men who signed the telegram said they saw du Temple only rarely.

Rev. Robert Robillier, a Roman Catholic priest known as "Bob of the North," said: "How can you expect a man who is stationed 250 miles away to come into this area and do a proper job when he has to serve over 6,000 people in five communities spread over 1,000 miles of road?"

F. J. Topp, a stipendiary magistrate, said: "I know a woman pensioner who's going on 75, is broke but can't get hospitalization or medical care from the welfare department."

"Yet in the same town here we have a young woman with four kids, whose husband is living common law with another woman and kid in Vancouver, and she gets hospitalization for herself and her kids."

"She also gets about $160 a month in welfare but the old woman gets nothing. In all she gets about $200 a month with family allowance but gets almost everything free."

"I don't care what the government does to me because of my statements. The trouble in B.C. is that if you work for the government and know things are wrong but speak out you get fired just like du Temple."

Salvation Army Swings

LONDON (AP)—The Salvation Army invaded the pop music world Friday by releasing a catchy religious record featuring army lads and ladies singing, playing guitars and drumming something like the Beatles.

The record, It's An Open Secret, with We're Going to Set The Whole World a Singing on the other side, has the melody carried by male voices, with responses from the girls, plus a driving twist beat and busy guitars.

It was made by The Joy Strings, led by attractive Capt. Joy Webb, a bouncy brunette who composed the two songs. All the proceeds will go to the Salvation Army.

"They are as near as we dare to go a commercial sound," she said. "I kept two points in mind: The words had to be crystal clear so that the religious message could be understood, and the lyrics had to retain a certain dignity."

"It would not have done, for instance, to pepper the lyrics with yea-h's and woo-woos."

The Joy Strings are members of the Salvation Army training College at Denmark Hill in London, with the exception of drummer Wycliffe Noble, an architect.

Who Are They?

Who are these handsome, crewcut lads? Guesses could be they are Boy Scouts off to jamboree, Jayces planning good works or even—perversely—the morning lineup at juvenile court. Real answer is on Page 16.

NANAIMO — Donald Nelson, 18, was arrested Thursday morning after a wild chase through Nanaimo streets. On his first appearance in court, Nelson pleaded not guilty to police charges and was remanded until Feb. 21.

Ross later changed his plea to guilty to all charges. He was sentenced to three months for driving while under suspension, one year definite and one year indeterminate for an attempt to mislead police as to who was driving the car at the time, and was fined $50 for driving with improper licence plates.

Not Many Policemen; Vigilantes, Perhaps?

PARKSVILLE — Some members of Parksville and District Chamber of Commerce would be prepared to act as special constables if legal steps could be taken to form their own civilian patrol until better police protection is gained for this area.

At the February meeting of the chamber, a motion was unanimously approved to make a request to the attorney-general's department for greater police protection for Parksville.

Also included in the motion was a suggestion that local residents be provided with a Zenith (toll free) telephone number in order to contact Nanaimo RCMP in an emergency if the Qualicum RCMP is not immediately available.

It was pointed out at the meeting that although there is a five-man detachment at Qualicum Beach, three officers are assigned to highway patrol which leave only two for general duty in the whole Parksville-Qualicum district.

It was the feeling of the meeting that a resident policeman in Parksville would do much to discourage burglary here.

There have been several cases of breaking and entering in the past few weeks and in the latest incident thieves got away with a considerable amount of merchandise.

Judo Show Set Sunday

DUNCAN — The 55-member Cowichan Judo Club will host its first Vancouver Island Judo tournament Sunday at Viny Hall. About 150 participants will come from Nanaimo, Victoria, Comox, Courtenay, and Tofino clubs.

Local club president Max Gieskamp said black belts from Victoria, Tofino and Nanaimo will judge, and a total of nine trophies have been donated by Duncan Merchants.

Tugboat Finds Body

PORT ALBERNI — Rites will be held at 2:30 p.m. today in Stevens Funeral Home for Frederick Farrell, 52, whose body was found in the Alberni Inlet Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Farrell, an employee of Borneas Division, McMillan, Blordel and Powell River Ltd., was reported missing Jan. 21 by his sister.

An operator of a Stone Bros. tug sighted the body near the west shore of the harbor and notified police.

Born in Dauphin, Man., Mr. Farrell had lived in the Alberni for 15 years. He was single and made his home at the Kingsway Hotel.

Mrs. Ann Crossland of Port Alberni is a sister; three other sisters live in Dauphin, Winnipeg, and in Saskatchewan. Surviving also are three brothers, Victor, Port Alberni, Charles, Vancouver, and Edward, Edmonton.

Rev. John Frith will conduct the service with burial in the Field of Honor, Greenwood Cemetery.

PARKSVILLE — A suggestion that a ferry subsidy be provided by the federal government in order to reduce fares between Nanaimo and Hornsby Bay is contained in a resolution to be presented to the annual meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island at Duncan March 23 and 24.

The resolution says in part the present level of fares restricts the flow of traffic to and from Vancouver Island. It asks for a one-third fare cut.

Also to be presented to the ACCVI is a resolution requesting a brief be submitted to the federal and provincial governments requiring all able-bodied men and women on welfare to work.

DUNCAN — A civil defence course in radiological defence was concluded here this week.

The course was designed to familiarize personnel with the function and use of radiac instruments and to assess their findings for the purpose of map plotting.

The instructor was Mrs. E. F. Dunlop. She was assisted by Mr. Dunlop. The radiac instruments and sources were loaned by the province and all personnel were required to wear individual film badges, which, at the end of the course, were sent to Ottawa for the purpose of checking the amount of radiation each person had been exposed to.

Various types of materials were tested, including concrete, bricks, wood, steel and water, to show the amount of protection each substance would afford against radiation fallout.

MONITORED — During the course, a monitoring exercise engaged several teams to detect and plot the varying points of intensity.

Other course features were films and a lecture on the military aspects of nuclear detection and fallout reporting system.

Three Students Killed As Car Hits Bus

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP) — Three Dauphin high school girls were killed and the driver of the car in which they were riding critically injured Friday when the car was in collision with a loaded school bus four miles south of here.

Dead are Elizabeth Kittlar-chuk, Linda Buchy and Lynn Lozinski, all 16. Unconscious in Dauphin Hospital and suffering head injuries is Ronald Gules, 21, of Dauphin, the driver of the car.

None of the 16 children in the Dauphin-Ochre district bus was injured.

Driver Dave West says he was parked and unloading when the bus was struck in the rear by the Gules car.

RCMP said the rear wheels and transmission of the bus were wrenched free by the impact and the roof of the car was torn off.

The car is reported to have travelled some distance after the impact before it stopped.

Coroner Dr. R. E. Dick has ordered a preliminary hearing into the cause of the accident.

Damages Set At $10,578

KELOWNA (CP) — A Supreme Court jury Thursday night awarded damages of $10,578.25 in favor of the widow and two children of a man killed five years ago when his car plunged off a bridge into Okanagan Lake.

The eight-member jury found the victim, Robert Thomson of Westbank, B.C., was 75 per cent to blame in the accident.

The British Columbia Toll Highway and Bridges authority, defendant in the suit, was found to be 25 per cent at fault.

Bureau Record 'Pitiful'

The Victoria Visitors Bureau ended 1963 more or less in the black—but with a year's overall financial record described by the bureau's president as "pitiful."

Directors of the bureau yesterday discussed income-and-expenditure record for 1963, its first year of operation. The record will go to the bureau's annual meeting Feb. 28 at the Empress.

GRANTS INCLUDED

The record shows receipts in the year ending Jan. 31, 1964, of $62,579—including grants of $50,000 from the city of Victoria, $1,250 from Oak Bay, $2,500 from Saanich and $300 from Esquimalt. Disbursements totalled $75,113.

Thus, the bureau spent $12,534 more than it took in in 1963. But it had $11,443 cash when it began the year, for a net cash over-expenditure of $1,090.

The report noted that, at Jan. 31, 1964, the bureau had outstanding claims for tax refunds from the governments of B.C. and Canada totalling $1,347.84.

VALUE AT COST

It also had an inventory of printed matter on hand valued at cost at $5,319.52.

Bureau president Conway Parrott said the over-all size of the budget is pitifully small.

Municipal contributions are for the most part satisfactory, he said, but business should contribute much more.

Federal Ruling

Pair Joins Forces To Seek Back Pay

Ex-serviceman Thomas Moran and former dockyard worker Horace Hannam have rounded up a group of men who may try to fight back-pay claims in court collectively.

Mr. Moran, 664 Colville, started the roundup after he was told he would not receive about $130 back pay allotted to other government employees for seven months last year when he worked at Veterans' Hospital as a nursing orderly.

EIGHT YEARS

Mr. Moran ended eight years' DVA service last July when he went to work at Royal Jubilee Hospital. But when a federal treasury ruling entitled other government employees to back pay, Mr. Moran was told he was not entitled to any cash because he no longer worked for the government.

First to get in touch with Mr. Moran, who appealed for support through the Colonist, was Mr. Hannam, 507 Springfield, who found he was in a similar position. Mr. Hannam expected about $100 back pay for work he did at the Esquimalt dockyard between November, 1962, and May, 1963.

DIDN'T QUALIFY

He, too, was told he did not qualify for the money because he did not work for the government on July 9, when the treasury ruling was announced.

Since then Mr. Moran and Mr. Hannam have tried to find other people in similar circumstances. So far, they have traced a further 10 or 11 people.

Municipal Contracts

'Easy Mark' Attitude Scored by Alderman

By IAN STREET

Some local contractors appear to regard municipal contracts as "an easy mark," Centennial Square committee was told yesterday.

Ald. A. W. Toone, committee chairman, was commenting on tenders received for the first stage of square landscaping, which all exceeded by a considerable amount the revised budget sum of $80,000.

The committee recommended to city council the contract be awarded to Cornist Construction Ltd., a Vancouver firm, which submitted the low bid of $85,336.

LOCAL FIRMS

Three other bids, all from local firms, were: George H. Weston, $109,481; Farmer Construction, $110,753, and M. P. Paine, $123,935.

Ald. Toone said the gap between original estimates and bids "seem rather fantastic." He added: "I'm not satisfied this is entirely due to the glut of local construction work at this time."

SOME BUILDERS

"The suspicion is rising in my mind," the chairman said, "that instead of Victoria contractors wanting to do a job on this project at a good price, some of our contractors look upon municipal government contracts as an easy mark."

Roderick Clack, special projects and architectural consultant, said he could not recall any period since 1945 when so many large construction projects were under way or about to be launched in Victoria.

AT LATER DATE

"This unusual situation," said Mr. Clack, "makes it extremely difficult to obtain tenders at prices which are at all competitive. There is no way we can control this situation; nor is it my recommendation that we wait until conditions change in our favor and recall these landscaping tenders at a later date."

City manager Dennis Young said the situation in which bids ranged from 37 per cent to 73 per cent above the original estimate of $80,000 for the first stage landscaping "should not be minimized."

SERIOUS SPOT

"It only amounts to some $26,000 on this contract," said Mr. Young, "but if the same situation develops on the $400,000 civic theatre contract then we will be in a serious predicament."

The manager said two Vancouver contractors had already refused to bid on the theatre job "because of the implications they feel are contained in the clause covering local preference."

FINANCIAL SENSE

Ald. Toone said he felt the clause could be left in but added it should be made quite clear it means "only when all things are equal in the financial sense does the local firm receive preference."

City council will be asked, at a special meeting Thursday at 2:30 p.m., to approve transfer of the $23,000 from the contingency fund and $5,000 from the second stage landscaping budget to meet the contract price.

'Important Job'

Civic Theatre Getting Manager

City council will be asked shortly to appoint a full-time manager for the civic theatre on Centennial Square which is to be called the McPherson Playhouse.

The committee in charge of planning for the $2,000,000 civic project yesterday authorized city manager Dennis Young to advertise the position. Replies to the ad will be screened by the special advisory committee on recreation and go to the council for the final decision.

Ald. A. W. Toone, committee chairman, said the advisory body recommended against having a single manager to run both civic theatre and Memorial Arena.

"The main thing now," said city manager Dennis Young, "is to get a manager without further delay."

Both Ald. Toone and Mr. Young agreed the manager should be installed while the theatre was still under construction. In other cities it has been proved this saves money in the long run and makes for a more efficient operation.

ENOUGH WORK

"There is the opening to be planned," the city manager said, "and enough work to keep the man that is appointed virtually living in the theatre for the next 18 to 24 months."

"This is a very important full-time job in a field where there is a definite scarcity of the product we require."

Mayor R. B. Wilson said that, in view of the shortage of time, he felt it was correct to appoint a manager first and then set up the body that would control overall operations of the new playhouse.

Provincial authorities informed the city the government is willing to pay one-third of the major portion of property that makes up the site for the proposed senior citizens' recreation centre.

FOR TWO LOTS

City officials said this will amount to $25,000.50 on the $77,000 paid by the city for two lots on the site. The remainder, originally city-owned property with some $12,500, isn't covered by the government's cost-sharing formula.

The committee approved calling tenders for the demolition of the two-storey apartments at Government and Flagg adjoining the Pantages Theatre.

Truck Wheels

Langford Boy Run Over

A two-year-old Langford boy who was run over by the rear wheels of a truck Thursday was reported in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital last night.

Police said Robert Mornau, 965 Bray, suffered pelvic injuries when the truck, driven by Barry Kaehn, 2910 Leigh, backed over him at about 3:45 p.m.

Mr. Kaehn said he looked in both rear-view mirrors before backing the truck to make a fuel delivery, and could see nothing in his way.

Robert was taken to hospital by a next-door neighbor while Mr. Kaehn phoned Colwood RCMP. Police returned to the scene yesterday to complete their investigation.

To the Finish

Cedar Will Fight Planning Rules

NANAIMO—Cedar residents are to fight to the finish to keep their district free from zoning, building controls and all that goes with community planning.

At a meeting Thursday night sponsored by the South and East Cedar Ratepayers Association, residents aired their views in no uncertain terms during the question period following a proposal to make Cedar a planned area.

MAKE BEST USE

Speaking for the government, G. W. Tume of the provincial community planning office explained the benefits of a district being planned so development would make the best use of land.

He explained how building controls were meant to protect owners and said an orderly development would be in the best interests of all residents.

Neil Hutchins, building inspector of regional planning projects, explained the issuing of permits and how construction was inspected to see it conformed with standard building practice.

TEEN EDGE

The audience of 50 listened attentively but applauded only those speakers who called planning an encroachment on liberty.

The general opinion was that planning was the thin edge of the wedge and they wanted no part of it.

The meeting voted unanimously in favor of a motion to inform the minister of municipal affairs the South and East Cedar Ratepayers Association was against the inclusion of Cedar in any regional planning scheme.

President of the Lake's chamber, E. T. McBride said a delegation from his group met with Highways Minister Gagliardi and MLA for Cowichan—Newcastle Robert Strachan at Victoria recently and discussed the road's condition and improvement.

Mr. Gagliardi told the delegation this road was under construction at the present time, and he would visit the area himself this spring.

Mr. McBride said it is hoped the minister will make a "favorable announcement" at that time.

TURKISH WARSHIPS LEAVE PORT WITH TROOPS, HEAVY EQUIPMENT

ISTANBUL (AP)—Press reports today said that Turkish warships carrying troops and heavy equipment sailed from the southern port of Iskenderun Friday night.

In a dispatch by its special correspondent in Iskenderun, the influential Istanbul Daily Milliyet said: "The embarkation of troops from the 39th Division was completed at 2 p.m. EST Friday."

"Military vehicles, jeeps, bazookas and other heavy equipment and armaments drawn from the 48th Infantry Regiment were loaded aboard two naval transports while troops embarked on destroyers," the report said.

The reports said the troops were awaiting further orders regarding any possible landing in Cyprus under Turkey's intervention rights recognized by the London and Zurich agreements on Cyprus.

Iskenderun is 100 miles from embattled Cyprus.

30 MILES AWAY

The Milliyet report said the transports and warships are 30 miles off Cyprus.

It went on: "Iskenderun is under an atmosphere of over-all mobilization. Foreign license-plate cars are not allowed to enter the city."

NO CONFIRMATION

"But official circles decline to confirm this activity is connected directly with an invasion of Cyprus."

Under an Iskenderun dateline, Turkey's biggest newspaper, Istanbul's Hurriyet, said troops aboard the warships that sailed Friday night included "guerrilla units."

ON MANOEUVRES

The newspaper quoted the chief of the general staff, Gen. Cevdet Sunay, as saying in Ankara: "Reports that our troops in the region (of Iskenderun) are engaged in manoeuvres."

But the Hurriyet said an extraordinary military activity is evident all over Iskenderun.

NICOSIA—U.S. Undersecretary of State George Ball's efforts to sell President Makarios of Cyprus a British-U.S. peace plan collapsed Friday. Diplomats said Makarios will present the Cyprus crisis to the United Nations Security Council.

The bearded chief of state—who has said that "when I have certain ideas I will not compromise"—rejected the proposal for landing of an international peace-keeping army outside UN control.

UNEASY ALLIES

Ball said the search will continue for a solution to bring peace and order out of the communal fighting between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots, in which three Turkish-Cypriots were reported shot dead Friday.

Then Ball flew off in a U.S. Air Force jet plane to brief government officials of Turkey and Greece, uneasy allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, on the outcome of three days of discussions which he and a special British envoy, Cyril Pickard, conducted in Nicosia.

Both U.S. and British diplomats strongly urged Turkey against independent intervention.

Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu was reported to have warned the U.S., British and Greek governments that urgent steps must be taken to restore security.

The hearts and flowers tradition of Feb. 14 exploded into a legislative Valentine's Day massacre yesterday.

One minute the house heard a moving tribute to former women MLAs and the next minute the epithets crackled and ricocheted like the slugs which mowed down a clutch of Chicago gangsters just 35 years before.

The day started on a happy note when Lois Hagen (NDP—Grand Forks-Greenwood) thanked Premier Bennett for a Valentine bouquet.

TURNER FIRST

Within minutes the verbal bullets were flying.

Arthur Turner (NDP—Vancouver East) released the safety catch when he broached the subject of conflicting statements over the proposed Bank of British Columbia.

What followed was the noisiest afternoon of the session. Speaker William Murray's crashing gavel could hardly be heard at times as he tried to restore order.

On the heels of Mr. Turner's unfinished opening remarks came these salvos:

● Premier Bennett called Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane a "two-bit lawyer."

● North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson said either Premier Bennett or Canada's bankers had lied.

● Mr. Bennett said the conflicting statements about the bank were the result of a misunderstanding.

● Mr. Turner challenged the premier to make a statement Monday to reconcile the apparent conflict.

Cause of the fracas was a statement by Premier Bennett last Friday that Canada's chartered banks had been asked to establish their head offices in B.C. before the provincial government had deemed it necessary to promote its own bank. A number of bankers denied they were approached.

REPORTS QUOTED

Mr. Turner opened his speech by referring to newspaper clippings and quoting from reports of what the bankers had said.

One had termed the premier's claim "rubbish" and others had branded it untrue.

Suddenly a white-faced Premier Bennett leaped to his feet, shouting: "Mr. Speaker, I think this has gone far enough."

HONOR INVOLVED

When opposition members told him to sit down he said he was talking on a point of personal privilege. His honor had been brought up before on this matter.

He said he had asked the heads of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, The Royal Bank of Canada, The Toronto-Dominion Bank, the Bank of Montreal and the Bank of Nova Scotia.

WASN'T THOSE

"Either the bankers are not telling the truth or else the premier is not telling the truth," said Mr. Turner. "They are not lying either," shot back the premier. "It wasn't those men."

Mr. Turner said the premier should have clarified the conflict earlier.

"Table the letters (to the banks)," called out Opposition Leader Strachan.

"I have clarified it now," said the premier.

Skillings

Privy Council Skillings' Spot

North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson, stung by Waldo Skillings' sally Thursday night accusing him of being intoxicated during debate on the B.C. Electric takeover in 1961, got his revenge yesterday.

He had been studying Mr. Skillings' background in an attempt to learn why he would make such a remark, Mr. Gibson said.

The Oxford dictionary supplied the word "skilling," meaning "a shed or outhouse," Mr. Gibson said.

The House roared. "So from now on," the burly millionaire logger continued, "I am going to refer to him as the privy councillor."

Welfare Defector Going Home

over B.C.'s handling of social assistance by sending an open letter of resignation to the premier, said he expects to head back to Fort St. John Monday.

His resignation as a social worker was accepted with stunning alacrity Thursday.

He had said the way welfare is administered he found it impossible to cope with conditions of prostitution, drunkenness and juvenile delinquency in his huge bailiwick north of Fort St. John.

He flew here at his own expense, hoping to talk to the premier Thursday, but he wasn't able to get an appointment.

Yesterday, he phoned the premier's office at 10 a.m. and was told he would be called back.

But no call came, so late in the afternoon he called again.

"A secretary in the premier's office told me she wasn't able to get in touch with the premier today," Mr. du Temple said.

Mr. du Temple said his stand was winning strong demand in the north for better social services.

A telegram he received from prominent people in Fort Nelson said the community is demanding a full-time social worker.

In his letter Mr. du Temple had named Fort Nelson as one of the trouble spots in his district.

Because his territory included 1,100 miles of road and a widely scattered population he could never be in the place he was needed most. He said a Fort Nelson social worker was essential.

Mr. du Temple's case was raised in the legislature by North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson, who said that, right or wrong, the case should be fully aired before the legislative welfare committee.

He noted Welfare Minister Black was out of the House and said he should be on a plane to Fort St. John to investigate Mr. du Temple's charges.

The ex-social worker had "looked like a man of character," said Mr. Gibson, and it was a disgrace his story wouldn't be heard by the committee.

He charged Mr. Black with "running an awfully, awfully poor department."

'How Can You Expect A Proper Job Done?'

FORT NELSON (CP)—Community leaders have wired the provincial government asking for a fulltime welfare officer.

The demand, above 20 signatures, came after Wallace du Temple, government social worker at Fort St. John, was fired for saying his job was impossible. His area included Fort Nelson.

Several of the men who signed the telegram said they saw du Temple only rarely.

Rev. Robert Robiller, a Roman Catholic priest known as "Bob of the North," said: "How can you expect a man who is stationed 250 miles away to come into this area and do a proper job when he has to serve over 6,000 people in five communities spread over 1,000 miles of road?"

F. J. Topp, a stipendiary magistrate, said: "I know a woman pensioner who's going on 73, is broke but can't get hospitalization or medical care from the welfare department."

"Yet in the same town here we have a young woman with four kids, whose husband is living common law with another woman and kid in Vancouver, and she gets hospitalization for herself and her kids."

"She also gets about $160 a month in welfare but the old woman gets nothing. In all she gets about $200 a month with family allowance but gets almost everything free."

"I don't care what the government does to me because of my statements. The trouble in B.C. is that if you work for the government and know things are wrong but speak out you get fired 'ust like du Temple."

Salvation Army Swings

LONDON (AP)—The Salvation Army invaded the pop music world Friday by releasing a catchy religious record featuring army lads and ladies singing, playing guitars and drumming something like the Beatles.

The record, It's An Open Secret, with We're Going to Set The Whole World a Singing on the other side, has the melody carried by male voices, with responses from the girls, plus a driving twist beat and busy guitars.

It was made by The Joy Strings, led by attractive Capt. Joy Webb, a bouncy brunette who composed the two songs. All the proceeds will go to the Salvation Army.

"They are as near as we dare to go a commercial sound," she said. "I kept two points in mind: The words had to be crystal clear so that the religious message could be understood, and the lyrics had to retain a certain dignity."

"It would not have done, for instance, to pepper the lyrics with yeah-yeahs and woo-woos."

The Joy Strings are members of the Salvation Army training College at Denmark Hill in London, with the exception of drummer Wycliffe Noble, an architect.

Who Are They?

Who are these handsome, crewcut lads? Guesses could be they are Boy Scouts off to jamboree, Jaycees planning good works or even—perverse!—the morning lineup at juvenile court. Real answer is on Page 16.

Gunfire Riddles Two Families

FALLS CHURCH, Va. (AP) of Thomas Cox, principal of an elementary school.

In Athens, Ohio, four members of the farm family of William Wildman, 55, died when a shotgun-wielding man ran amok. Two others, one a small boy, were wounded seriously. Farmhand Rudy Zarmora, 20, was sought by police.

The fourth child, a two-year-old boy, was in extremely critical condition in hospital with a head wound. The killer was identified as Judith Cox, wife

Defector Wants U.S. Asylum

Nosenko

WASHINGTON (AP)—Yuri I. Nosenko, Soviet secret police defector, told Russian and Swiss representatives in Washington Friday that he wants political asylum in the United States, the U.S. state department announced.

Press officer Richard I. Phillips said Nosenko's request will be granted. His disappearance from the Soviet disarmament delegation in Geneva Feb. 4 created a cold war sensation.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko accused the U.S. of "improper behavior" in the Nosenko case. He delivered a stiff oral protest to U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Koh-

Outcry Expected

End to Banks' Rule Goal of Opposition

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—An opposition outcry for the head of the Bank of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada is expected to erupt at the session of Parliament starting Tuesday. With the shipping season about seven weeks away, opposition spokesmen say they will press the government for an early report from the three-man board of trustees over maritime unions on what they have done and plan to do in restoring democracy to the SIU.

Labor Minister MacEachen is expected to receive the trustees' report this month, and to table it in the Commons promptly.

FIRST STEP

There are indications, however, that the report may do little to mollify MPs who felt the ouster of Banks would be the first step taken by trustees in assuming management and control of the SIU and the four other marine unions.

Explosion Derails Train

NEW SMYRNA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—An explosion under the lead locomotive of a strike-bound Florida East Coast Railway freight train derailed 14 moving cars Friday night.

W. L. Thornton, chief operating officer of the railroad struck 13 months ago, said it was "another sabotage... an attempted murder."

Thornton said "there is now more than 200 such sabotage attempts... something of a national disgrace which goes back to the old goon squad racket."

Union spokesmen had no immediate comment.
